The 1932 Kaleidoscope

Published By The Junior Class Of Middlebury College At Middlebury Vermont.
THE purpose of the 1932 Kaleidoscope is to record the personnel and activities of Middlebury College during the year 1930-1931, to perpetuate the memory of the class of 1932, and to reflect the atmosphere of Middlebury's most unique possession, the Mountain Campus.

You are so quiet in these brooding hills
The twilight lingers long among the brakes
And reeds, the mournful cry of whip-poor-wills
The only sound that your deep peace awakes.
You mark the spot where in the ancient years
Some god dissolved his stricken heart in tears.

Gamaliel Painter’s Cane

1. When Gamaliel Painter died
He was Middlebury’s pride,
A sturdy pioneer without a stain;
And he left his all by will
To the College on the hill,
And included in a codicil a cane.

2. Oh, his blessed bones are hid
‘Neath a marble pyramid,
Forever there in honor to remain;
And he built us Painter hall,
Noblest monument of all,

4. And our brothers by the lake,
How they shiver and they shake,
And their shivering is easy to explain;
We have trimmed them in the past,
We will trim them to the last,
For we conquer in the courage of the cane.

CHORUS
Oh, it’s rap, rap, rap,
And it’s tap, tap, tap,
If you listen you can hear it sounding plain;
For a helper true and tried,
As the generations glide,
There is nothing like Gamaliel Painter’s Cane!

CANE AND PANTHER SONG
Gamaliel Painter founded Midd in eighteen naughty naught,
He chased away the Indians and scalped the ones he caught,
He was a sturdy pioneer, who worked with might and main,
And left us here an emblem dear; his strong and sturdy cane.

CHORUS
And so his cane remains a symbol to every son of Midd
Of the courage of her founders—of the things that Painter did.
Our gallant band courageous stand, when duty’s clear and plain—
And fight, fight, fight, for the Blue and White,
With the courage of the cane.

The 1932 Kaleidoscope

18 YEARS AGO (MORE OR LESS)
Juniors
As class after class goes through Middlebury, graduates, and breaking up, loses group identity, all but the more outstanding accomplishments of each are quickly forgotten. This is to be expected, for upon the record of a college of Middlebury’s age and tradition, the achievements of one more class make but slight imprint. Only a few memories of each group are of enough significance to merit a place in the real history of Middlebury College.

Nineteen thirty-two is in some respects unique among Middlebury classes. For we came to the college as the curtain was being rung down upon a very definite phase of its history. Lately we unheeding have seen grow up around us a new Middlebury that as yet scarcely knows itself.

Hazing, guardian of tradition and inspiriter of the newcomer, and for many decades considered basic in college life, died with us. We were the last to be drenched by the rain party, to buy paddles for the sophomores, and to administer the chapel rush to our successors.

Nineteen thirty-two was the last Middlebury class privileged to know two outstanding teachers, each of whom made brilliant contributions to that educational organization that will train the future students who must remain unacquainted with their benefactors. With the one our friendship lasted but a few months, with the other a full year.

The same inexplicable fates that made us the last in these respects, sent us to the opposite extreme in another. Even now it is obvious that 1932 will be the first Middlebury class to be effected by application of the initial features of the new segregation plan.

So we look back upon the old and forward upon the new. Surely the Middlebury to which we came as freshmen will bear scant resemblance to the Middlebury to which the class will return for its first major reunion, five years after graduation. It is not for us to sit in judgment upon the relative merits of past and future; we can only voice our gratitude at being at Middlebury during these highly important years, when one of the greatest innovations in the college’s history was being conceived and put into practice.

The undergraduate account of any college class is not its real record, for as students we are too much the passive beneficiaries, too little the active doers, and true history deals with the positive individual. The greater history of the class of 1932 is still unmade, and cannot be written for many years.

Windsor High School
Track (1); Interfraternity Basketball (1, 2, 3).
"May no fate willfully misunderstand me."
A quiet, sly, smile, and a faint twinkle in his eyes, are the signs by which Andy is recognized. He finds considerable pleasure in taking short walks into the country surrounding Middlebury, and those who have had the good fortune to be his companions upon these occasions testify to his friendliness and good nature. The most famous example of Andy's walking expeditions was the time he visited the Morgan Horse Farm, where the management honored him with a special showing of all the prize stock. How could he help it if he looked like a bank president and potential customer in disguise?

"When I heard the learn'd astronomer;
When the proofs, the figures, were ranged in columns before me..."
The thing we most admire about Andy is his ability to take the hard courses, and come back the next year grinning for more. While most of us were wondering what it was all about in physics class last year, he always managed to have a clear idea of even the most complicated phases. And then the next fall, when the rest of the class was blessing the kind gods that had passed them, Andy calmly elected astronomy. And now he can intelligently emulate Whitman's hero, and wander off by himself, to look up in perfect silence at the stars.

"Ladies prefer blondes."
Ray is best known for his Houdini acts on the basketball court. Is there anyone who hasn't felt a real thrill when that tall blond young man flashed all over the floor sinking twin counters from every corner? But there is so much more to Ray's advantage than his athletic prowess. His character is absolutely devoid of all selfishness, the happiness of others he places beyond any personal satisfaction. In a quiet, unassuming manner this great son of Ballston Lake has endeared himself to the hearts of all those with whom he has had contact. Ray is a real friend.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath."
Perk's method is unconscious persuasion; one is coerced before he believes it is time to be on the defense. His humor is inimitable for the few who know him. Perk treads softly and goes far, and his individuality is best seen when he is most malleable. Life, Perk does not question, for it has been said that he has a sense of humor; college is a phase of life and it is best not to be . . . and, oh, well

"And still the wonder grew,
That one small head could carry all he knew."

Up from the south at the break of day came Johnnie, transferring his activities from the seat of government to this seat of learning. Like another famous inhabitant of our fair capital, Johnnie did not choose to run in 1928, to say nothing of 1929, 1930, or 1931. Not that he is lazy—oh no; it is simply the fact that he has never had to run, not even to class lest he be late, for he has made the Dean's List ever since his first semester, and now that he is a junior he doesn't have to go to class at all.

"What price glory?"

Here is a unique individuality with an unfailing sense of the ridiculous, and an indifference to a sense of property—in short, one who serves by standing and waiting. His now discarded beret and windsor hat had, for those who remember them, a greater value than a four-in-hand or a stetson. They were the outward expression of what we have learned to know... a loyalty to reciprocal tones. Bob was an effective antidote for our second year, and his treatment is a progressive one. The fees however are exorbitant, for one must also have a sense of humor, Oli, yes—he plays football.

"Had sighed to many, though he loved but one."

Dick is a man of parts. And if you add up all the parts this man has, you find the sum total to be enormous. In the first place, he comes from Port Henry in Essex County, that part of the country from which the Adirondacks take root. Also if you add the ability to pound drums, to pound the line for his football numerals, and to pound the books for other kinds of numerals, you have just a few of Dick's many parts. But his strongest characteristics are most apparent to the fair sex, and thereupon hinges many a story.

"If he has not indeed gone the way of the Dodo."

Bel is one of the lucky individuals who do not have to engage in cut-throat competition for the favor of the local co-eds, for he rests safe in the assurance that he has a "girl back home." He is therefore able to devote his full energies to basketball, to the intense discomfiture of Middlebury's court opponents. Nor must we forget to add that he is as clever at manipulating the French language as he is at handling a basketball—which of course accounts for the high estimation in which he is held at the Château.

His preferences are obscure, for he has so many. Bill prefers harmony and quiet thoughts; and he believes when and where others doubt, and has been successful. His perspicacity is tempered by tolerance; and his intentions are obvious; his way of fulfilling them is more so; his last thought is to get the best of one (he has in fact, no such thought). Instead Bill does the better thing, and is always justly rewarded. He is best known as a paradox; he goes out of his way to keep on his way.

"Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds."
Al certainly has not been very consistent in his selection of a college. For during his first year, he was apparently firmly convinced that the only place to get an education was in a city institution, and then the next fall he became equally sure that a small college in a small town was the proper thing. Our only regret is that he did not reach the latter idea sooner, for Al has added greatly to Middlebury's total stock of polish and finesse. He is smooth in every way—a smooth dresser; a smooth actor on the playhouse stage; and a smooth man with the co-eds.

Whoever gave Sandy his nickname, made a choice upon which no improvement could possibly be made, for he deserves the sobriquet for at least two reasons. In the first place, the color of his hair can be described by no other term; in the second, he must have his full share of grit and "sand" to be able to preserve such intellectual honesty as is his, amid the cynicism and radicalism of Starr Hall. Nor should we forget his ability at languages. It matters not whether the class be English, Latin, French, or Spanish, Sandy can express himself in each of these tongues better than the rest of us who concentrate upon one "lingo."

He has visions for the future which are formulated about a doctor's degree; but he is not one of those individuals who let their future vocational aspirations disproportionately dominate their college life. “Physicians, of all men, are most happy; whatever good success soever they have, the world proclaims; and what faults they commit, the earth covereth.”

Mike is planning to study medicine after he graduates and will undoubtedly make a fine physician. We hope that the earth will not have to cover his faults. He is one of those lucky individuals who can combine work and pleasure in the correct proportions. Despite the fact that he spends a great deal of his time in the vicinity of the Château, he manages to keep his grades on a high level. He strongly recommends summer school for the tired college students. Mike’s keen sense of humor balances his serious purpose.

"The satisfying of human wants is the goal of all activity."

All the freshmen become acquainted with Mac as soon as they have been at the commons for a few meals. He has been a regular fixture there, and the boys fresh from high school come to think of him as a part of the tradition and atmosphere of Middlebury. But Mac is an undergraduate, even as you and I. Generosity is his virtue and while personally we have no intention of cashing in on Mac's good will as far as seeking his commons job goes (for that involves getting up too early) we wouldn't mind taking his place in the band, wearing that blue blazer.

Mac is the best pitcher in the class of 1932, and was right up among the leading varsity moundsmen last spring. With the extra year of experience behind him and the assurance of that major "M", Mac should cause plenty of trouble for the opposing nines during the remainder of this season, and next year. (We attach little importance to the words of those who say that his performance on trips is liable to suffer if there is a good show the night before the game in the town where the team stays.)

His independence is both wise and worthy, and although Scrap has had reverses, there is no complaint. His sense of humor is provocative of a like mood in those about him. Tom is one of our provincial song birds. It takes a bitter set-back to discourage his good humor. Give him a chance and he would even compose an ode to math classes and geology lessons. Unlike those of many of our campus vocalists, his voice is melodious and he warbles a mean note both in the college choir and in the glee club. His activity has also invaded the precincts of publicity, and Tom was one of the first men in his class to be elected to the press club.

Working among books, however, hasn’t caused him to become entirely book-minded for he is always ready for a game of anything from touch football to ping-pong. Truly the finesse of France is well embodied in him. He has been active with the racket and won his letter as a freshman, displaying that inimitable style possessed by his people. West Rutland has sent several specimens of its suburban life to Middlebury, of which this is the latest edition. Let us therefore be among the first to praise the products of the Marble Burg, for Hunk has great promise of being an excellent chemist and who knows what new elements he may soon discover? Aside from Chem, his main interests seem to be West Rutland and a passion for Chevrolets. The only way we can correlate the two, is to presume that he so loves the former that he endures the latter as a means of transportation thereto.

Somehow or other when we think of Ray, we feel that we are losing what should be ours, all because of his long absence at the Inn during most of his available moments; but we should not be so selfish for obviously he cannot be in two places at the same time. Last fall Ray regulated yardage and penalties for the local high school gridsters as they went through battle and next fall we expect him to be an important addition to the Blue and White varsity line-up.

He has come to the realization, since his hectic freshman days, that life is serious, and so he tackles the most difficult Math and Physics with an earnestness that cannot be excelled. But don’t think for a moment that Rus is all seriousness, there is nobody that tramps around the campus with a more happy-go-lucky air, nobody who can provoke more merriment in a group, than our midget chimer. He started this statement in Rutland and the Green Mt. Flyer had reached Middlebury when he got through drawling out "taall." But seriously, though, Ed is right for while the rest of us reel off words at one hundred and fifty a minute, Ed carefully considers each syllable of his class recitation, with the result that he has a scholastic average that could be divided between two ordinary collegians, and still satisfy both of them.

"One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name."

It is seldom, we have been led to believe, that beauty is combined with brains, but since we have met Bill, we have changed our minds. She seems to be one of those who, besides being blessed with beauty, has also super-memory and a happy faculty for reading the things the "intelligentsia" talk about. She is a charming conversationalist, and has that enviable "savoir-faire." She is one of those delightful people who fit in anywhere, and seems to have been born a cosmopolitan.

"What she wills to do or say

Evie is one of the most truly capable girls in our class, and if anything has to be done, she is the one to do it. We have really begun to think that no class transaction would be complete if we didn't have Evie on the job. Yet not one bit of her charm is sacrificed to business . . . have you ever seen her as hostess in the Kappa kitchen? And we know that we'd miss Evie's friendly little laugh if we couldn't hear it now and then.

Don't be misled by the slant of Al's eyebrows, she's not such a cynic—anything but. When you get to know her, you find she has a delightful sense of humor and a decided penchant for good times. Weybridge House and one group of girls claimed her interest for two years, but now Al is holding her own at Pearson's and making new friends on the hill, among the Pearsonites. She has already confirmed her reputation for hospitality—for we've heard she wields a wicked toaster, and knows who has the Tea balls!

"So much one man can do

Louise is a dreamy soul and sees those little things in life which only the dreamy souls do. She always has lots to do but never seems to be doing it, but when the marks come out, and the literary and dramatic honors are passed around, you find she's stolen a match on you. Ellen never seems to be in a hurry, and apparently everything goes along smoothly for her. She leisurely strolls from class to class as if she had the power of keeping the bells from ringing until she arrived. Her enthusiasm in things seems to be of the steady kind, rather than that which burns itself out too soon. Ellen has two interests, which are so opposite as to preserve a nice balance. She likes to dance, and does it very beautifully. And she likes to take long walks, . . . although she doesn't always wait for the organized hike leaving Hillcrest at one-thirty.

Sometimes when we try to find Betty we are told she is at the Music Studio, and as we go there in search of her, we hear her clear soprano voice that has won her a place in both Choir and Glee Club. Slender, beautiful hands have long been associated with the tradition of musicians, and Jeanette's are no exception. They can draw lovely music from the piano or the organ with equal skill. But if hands are indicative of one's character, Jeanette's reveal delicacy and charm. Yet unlike most musicians, she has none of that difficult temperament, but a most endearing sense of humor, and a vivacity that makes the gay companion. But contrary Jeanette! We realize that in this case, music and brains seem to go together, for she is taking business law, and making a great success of it. Really, we give it up!

Carp recently transferred her abode, and we hope, her affections, from U.V.M. to Middlebury, and in the course of the short time she has been here, she has done much toward the acquiring of new friends. But why not? Her skill at repartee is a constant source of entertainment for all who have the chance to listen, and combined with this is a genuine sincerity and pleasing personality. She no longer seems a real "newcomer," but has managed to take quite an active interest in the campus doings. The class of '32 is glad to have her.

We saw Kay at a formal dance, . . . a study in black and gold, . . . and we thought, irrelevently, to be sure, of that John Held phrase, "the proud beauty." Not that Kay is proud, but we associate her bearing with that certain kind of aristocratic "hauteur." She never loses this dignity, for even in athletics, where she excels, skill only adds to her grace. Marg has a face like that of some fragile cameo, and all the delicate charm that goes with it. Like many bright scholars, she isn’t happy unless she’s worrying about some exam, either past or present, when she really never had anything to worry about in that line, in her life. Perhaps it’s just her modesty, and a certain tactfulness, that makes her like this. We can’t imagine Marg ever boasting about anything. Her soft, gentle voice and trilly laugh seem to match her perfectly. But Marg is the kind that’s in on every prank, nevertheless, and can get away with it!

Thus Freshman year she won the name of "Little Phi Beta," which in this case never means grind. Her irresistible sense of humor and keen imagination furnish many a good story to pass an idle moment. Yes, if you want to know how really thrilling history can be, just give twenty minutes to witnessing Betty's impersonation of Peter the Great, or to hearing her trace the line of English kings, making them all human in her own inimitable way. Dotty’s shy and reserved manner are apt to be misleading. Underneath her tranquility lurks a subtle humor, and a quiet enjoyment of the incongruous. She likes all the things which make life active and interesting, as well as being a fine rider. Dotty frequently takes long hikes on the roads which wind all around Middlebury. All kinds of books are grist for her mill, but she seems to gain most enjoyment from poetry and looks as if she might almost be a poet herself. From her attitude, too, we think Dotty believes in really applying philosophy to life.

"An old owl sat in a lonely oak,

That is a great maxim for some people, and in our case we merely point proudly to Jane. She never seems to stoop to the futile and vain remarks which are so apt to be current among college folk. Jane just comes along, sees what has to be done, and does it, with no disparaging remarks. Whatever breath she may have for such things, she expends in playing her cornet. It gives one confidence just to see her striding along the campus as if nothing could hinder her or bother her.

A pair of high heels comes tripping along, and Lucy arrives, her little round face reflecting the most weighty. And yet, Lucy's thoughts are far from being serious all the time; we think she just puts that on to fool people into thinking that such a small person really can be serious. Funny thoughts peep out from under her long lashes in spite of her efforts; but wait until she laughs—scrooges up her little nose and sort of shuts her eyes. Then you know that no one is more appreciative of life's funny side.

If we had to describe Rae in three terms, we would say blond, blue-eyed, and brainy, but no three words could ever convey half the liveliness or the daintiness that is Rae. One would never think, to look at her, that she preferred chemistry to English poetry, but she does. She is busy little person, but not too busy to take part in college dramatics, or to attend every dance, for Rae is one of the most graceful dancers the college can boast if the attention of the stag line is any criterion.

Cleone's great brown eyes would seem to prove that dark eyes are the most expressive and beautiful, for hers tell every fleeting mood. Yet her real expression comes through her music, for she has an unusual precision and delicacy of touch, the inborn rhythm, and the interpretive soul of a real artist. A great deal of her time is spent either at the piano or the organ, and sometimes the music seems to say that Cleone is dreaming again. She has made many friends among us here, who know well how to appreciate that quality some call "grit."

Just the love of sports seems to not only render her capable of taking part in any of them, but makes her outstanding. She has made the hockey team this year, and we have heard that she is quite a track-woman and a swimmer. She is pretty too . . . . her blond curly hair and honey colored eyes are an unusual and fascinating combination, and her husky voice has a charm all its own. We associate Frostie and the yellow roadster just as closely as we would associate Spring and Middlebury—we'd miss either of them. Although Frostie has not lived up on the hill, she is just as much a part of the college, and we know her just as well. Frances gives the same impression of steadfastness of purpose and resolution as some pioneer woman. She seems to have brought the serenity of those New Hampshire hills with her. And yet she is not so serious, in fact, we think she's about as full of fun as any of us. Fran simply seems to keep her goal in sight, and isn't carried away with the lesser things. She comes tapping along the campus with the most preoccupied look, as if her every thought were for the next class. And then, all of a sudden, she smiles that funny little three cornered smile. Criss has that something the French call "je ne sais quoi." Maybe it's charm, maybe its poise, maybe it's that "to the manner born" air—but anyway, it's the despair of write-up editors. If we tell you she graces a tea table simply and charmingly, perhaps you'll know what we mean. If we go on and tell you that she is sincerely scientific, you may not believe us, but Criss is certainly a contradiction. Belle arouses our admiration by her ability to take the most impossible chemistry courses and actually enjoy the work. This same curiosity has led her into many other fields of activity. But if we should ever see a portion of the lab fly up in the air, and Belle with it, we would know that she had been mixing heterogeneous combinations. But at the same time, we should expect her to land gracefully with a test tube in her hand, a retort around her neck, and a smile on her lips. She's that kind of a girl.

We hastened over the campus to the Chem building, the home ec lab, and the library, but arrived always a moment too late to catch her. So we said, "Darn it all, anyway," and set down to do some heavy thinking. She has a great deal of energy and enthusiasm, we decided, for she is preparing to realize either of two ambitions, that of becoming a dietician, or a social service worker. But suddenly we remembered that we had heard rumors from the North—perhaps she will only be a private dietician.

"Merrily, merrily shall I live."
If Beethoven could have known that Chris would one day play some of his works, that knowledge surely would have proved a double inspiration. We find it quite an inspiration just to listen to her, and there are some who find it just in looking at her. Since classic noses are such a rarity, Chris is the object of much envy and admiration, for her features are as regular as those of the most classic Greek. She has a corresponding calmness and sweetness which come from depth of character and a steady optimism.
Pat is one of those people in whom gaiety seems to be an ever present quality, ready to come twinkling out of her eyes or rippling out in her laughter. She seems on tip-toe with the joy of living. Pat writes charming poetry, and with her idealistic point of view and faith in the goodness of life, she has a happy combination for success in that art. But there is even a more important interest in her life. Have you ever heard of that boy, Charlie?

"Steel true, and blade straight."

A small slender figure is seen running to and fro on the base line of the tennis court, and from the excellent form, we know it must be Bobbie who is playing so fine a game. She has only two hobbies, one of them is tennis, and the other is Helen Wills. Bobbie gets the best out of life because she puts in the best, and there is no one who is a more loyal friend. Common sense and high ideals find a golden mean in her, and we think that she is a "wee little bit of all right."

"Earth's noblest thing—a woman perfected."

A face all witchery and charm, and a certain old-world dignity of manner which would befit a mediaeval princess. An unusual creative genius which makes her lovely hands equally nimble with either pen or brush. And lest you're thinking she has all the graces and not a single fault, we might whisper that she is just sufficiently belligerent to like a little "Scrap" now and then.
Mary Elinor Lente
Brooklyn, New York

Dramatic Club (3).

"Who mixed reason with Pleasure
And Wisdom with Mirth."

It's always hard to adjust one's self to a new place, but Elinor has done a fine job. Perhaps it was her merry laugh that drew us first, but we quickly discovered the optimistic and willing nature behind it and we feel as if she quite belonged now. She does, too, for her loyalty to Middlebury is just as true as that of any of us "natives."
Perhaps she appreciates even more some of the real educational advantages of Middlebury, for she is steeping herself in the "Chat" atmosphere. We expect that you'll soon be expounding on the values of French Literature, Elinor.

"For that all that fair is, is by nature good."

A piquant little nose and such daintiness would never lead one to think that Betty is one of our leading athletes. Yet she has proven her prowess on the hockey field and in basketball.
On the stage she has shown an equal ability in dramatics. Her sparkling wit has made her many friends, and assures her welcome anywhere. She carries her good sportsmanship into all her col-

the good old-fashioned "spunk" required of any New Englander.

"And in her mind the wisest books."
Ruth comes from that town so near Dartmouth. But Ruth is pretty loyal to Middlebury, you'll find, and can be seen most of the time around campus, studying at the library (which we put first to make a good impression rather than to say it is the only thing she does), or dancing with grace and keen enjoyment. Even the Chateau claims much of her time. But when we see a certain far-away look in her eyes, we wonder if her thoughts are confined to the limits of Middlebury or whether they seek new fields across the border, in the next state, and we hope Ruth will not be too much inveigled by the Green and White.

"Beholding the bright countenance of truth in the quiet and still air of delightful studies."
When Nancy came to college Freshman year she lived at Bryant House, and 'twas there she learned her roguish ways, or improved them, to say the least. But now that she is become a Junior she has put on a maidenly dignity and proved her efficiency in many ways, for she is secretary of Student Government. Nancy goes blithely on, believing that old saying, "if you want a friend, be one," for Nancy has those qualities upon which friendship thrives.
CAROLYN TINKHAM PIKE
Stowe, Vermont

"A mind not to be changed by time or place."

Carolyn can wend her way leisurely up chapel walk to organ practice at quarter of eight on a cold, winter morning, and look as if she really enjoyed the wind. Her calm serenity never seems to be disturbed. And yet she has a kind of quiet humor... shall we call it Vermont dry... which is just great. She gets everything done, and yet she doesn't seem so deadly efficient that she quite overshadows the rest of us. Carolyn is planning to be a teacher, and we expect that she'll be nothing short of a superintendent one of these days.

ANNA EVELYN OMWAKE

"There was a sound of revelry by night."

Wherever there is a social function, we find Anne, either as a merry participant in the jollity, or as a businesslike executive. On the hockey field or basketball court, she defends the laurels of '32. But wherever she is, if we hear her laugh, we know that it's she, for no one has quite so ringing a laugh as Anne. And as for sociability! Remember Hillcrest, that den of iniquity? And those good old Pennsylvania-German pretzels? Enter Omwake, enter many! Enter fun and frolic, noise and nonchalance, warning and double warning.
ANNAY MAY POPE

Springfield High School
Class Hockey (1, 2, 3); Volley Ball (1, 2); Basketball (1); Hiking Club (1, 3); Dramatic Club (2); German Club (2, 3).
"Do well and right, and let the world sink."
Anna's the kind of a girl who does well whatever she attempts to do. We have watched her on the hockey field, and know she is a goal keeper of the first rank. If it had not been for her well timed interference, '32 might not be holding its championship this year. And there is hardly a question the professors can ask in class that will trick Anna. She has a fine, simple dignity and a frank demeanor which allow no affectation, but which at the same time show her to be a good sport and the best of company.

ALBERTA BLANCHE POTTER
"Al"
Springfield, Massachusetts
Central High School
Springfield Junior College
Dramatic Club (2, 3); German Club (2, 3); House Chairman (2); Dean's List (2); Hockey (2, 3); Archery (3).
"Books cannot always please, however good."
The name "Potter" might almost bring to mind a vision of "Al." She looks like one of those little, Dutch porcelain figures, with painted yellow hair, and big china blue eyes. Only those eyes never had quite that twinkle which Al's have. And there's no porcelain stiffness about Al, for she has all the genuine energy and activeness required of any college girl. Al played a fine game of hockey this year, and proved herself an able sportswoman. She didn't become a Middleburian until her Sophomore year, but some people always seem like old friends, and so it is with Al.
EVELYN FRANCES REMICK

"Those graceful acts
Those thousand decencies that daily flow
From all her words and actions."

Ev's calm, gray-green eyes and glistening, black hair remind us of how Lorna Doone must have looked, and she certainly has all the poise and charm which that lady of fiction must have had. Ev is one of those thorough-going people who are so efficient and painstaking that everything seems to resolve itself into order and quick consummation. She is just the person to have around at any time, for she has bright ideas for a party, or just a good way to get out of a scrape. And there is some friendly chord in her which seems always to put her in sympathy with everyone.

"Care to our coffin adds a nail, no doubt,
And every grin so merry pulls one out."

Jo is the sort of person who has a smile for all, and a giggle for everyone's jokes. It's a pleasant pastime with her to enjoy all funny stories, even the old ones. But just this doesn't describe Jo completely. Did you ever see her working over a chem experiment, or studying for a German exam? She puts her whole enthusiastic self into doing the thing of the moment, whether it is college work or college play.

"Those about her From her shall read the perfect ways of honor."

For some it's charm, for others it's vivacity, but for Singie it's sincerity, too. It shines out in her smile, and all who know her realize the meaning of "friend." Nothing seems too great or too small for her to do, and her own personality makes it a vital thing. But she always remains her own true self, whom we all love.

"Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm."

Hockey, volley ball, basketball, anything—her deftness shoots her into the front line of activity. She chuckles infectiously over this or that mistake, or just for fun. Her slim, boyish charm and vivid coloring emphasize the quick grace and vitality which make her so outstanding. Elsa will always be found natural and frank, and is the very spirit of sportsmanship.

"A willing worker with a ready hand."

If anyone should labor under difficulties as to how to find the way into Emmie's heart, a difficulty which is highly improbable, to say the least, we would advise using a cat—i.e., real, stuffed, in portrait, or even in fiction, as a sure fire "Open Sesame." Professors and books don't get any more of Emmie's time than is absolutely necessary, but athletics—baseball, hockey, basketball, volley ball, hiking—all of them have her as a prime supporter. And we're not fooling when we say it's a sight to see how competently Emmie can climb a tree.

"Life is too short to waste."

When Willa was a little girl, we'll bet she had to be spanked every day, because she always makes one feel that she really didn't want to be good, that it was just an instilled habit. She has a little lisp which she says she doesn't like, but which we think quite intriguing. The only time she ever seems worried is before a preannounced, but at all other times she is in the best of spirits, like that old song "Just rollin' along, singin' a song." Willa has an independent, capable nature and a certain frank dignity which inspires respect.

"And even the wise are merry of tongue."

A greeting in Spanish followed by an infectious laugh, and you turn bewildered, to look into two bright, smiling eyes. It's Stebbie, kidding the world along as usual. She must have spent all her younger days in those quiet Connecticut hills thinking up the devilish things she'd say to people, or those funny little tricks she'd play, once she got outside. But remember, there's always a kind heart behind the happy-go-lucky jest. And right now we can hear her say, "Is THAT so?"

"Change amuses the mind."

Once Ruthie was an "upperclassman" to us, but after a year's absence from Middlebury she returned to enliven '32. "Life is hard," says Ruthie in a mocking tone when assignments and work besiege us all. But her ready intellect can instantly be turned from a serious mood to one where laughter and lively chatter are prevalent. She is very actively one of us, both studiously and socially, yet Middlebury has not all of her interest. We have heard she watches for that Vienna postmark.

"She could distinguish and divide
A hair 'twixt south and southwest side."

When Tut debates, she believes every word of it—and so do you, before she's half through. Tut is just full of the joy of living, and when the width of her ready smile decreases to only half the distance from ear to ear, you know that she has her worst attack of the blues. She glories in surgical operations, her patient being anything from a grasshopper to a banana fly. It's certain that Tut was born to be a doctor, if brains, good nature, and perseverance are the three essentials.

"The creature is of earnest mien."

Lenore gives the same impression as some serene Lady of old continental days. There is that same calmness of spirit and strength of purpose which can carry her through any project she undertakes, whether it is of great or small importance. Lenore is a fine student and tends (especially) toward history. Perhaps that is why she seems to look on life in such a grave way, and why her dark eyes seem so thoughtful. The more we see of Lenore, the easier it becomes to predict a not far distant Phi Bete key.
DOROTHY E. VERGASON

Norwich Town, Connecticut
Norwich Free Academy
Dramatic Club (1, 2, 3); French Club (1, 2, 3); Class Volley Ball (1); Campus Editorial Tryout (1).

"To thine own self be true."

Dot certainly has an air all her own. She's the kind of a girl that can put on a dimity dress, and make you think that it's the latest Paris fad. In fact, Dot, with her bright, blue eyes and alert expression, and a certain grace and life of movement, might easily pass for a Frenchwoman. There is an air of freedom, a poise and graciousness about her, that spells individuality. Of course, we admit, too, that Dot is a fine scholar, but that seems so prosaic after all the interesting things we have said. She certainly doesn't wear a Chi Psi pin for those scholastic abilities.

"I would help others out of a fellow feeling."

All of us tell our troubles to Helen and get all we can desire in the way of assistance and sympathy. In fact, she is so kindhearted that she even feels sorry at times for the mouse who plays the tyrant over her room, but she wouldn't think of entering the place without shaking the doorknob several minutes and making a general clatter. Every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday Helen receives two letters. When one of these fails we'll begin to think there's a slight "improbable possibility" that she may realize her avowed, scholarly ambition of teaching Latin all her days.

"Whose body lodged a mighty mind."

Jo's blue-black, shining hair and almond shaped eyes give her an appearance almost oriental, which we associate with embroidered kimonos and gay, painted parasols. Yet, if you want to meet a person that honestly takes her college studies seriously, meet conscientious little Jo. Nevertheless, she has no lack of friends, and we certainly would miss her quick smile and cute, little giggle. Jo's nature is of that sort which never seems to miss a trick, and her sense of values keeps her trumping the right ones, too.

We wouldn't want to say outright that Elsie is a Phi Bete, or anything like that, but when we think of the brain that lurks under that curly mop, we have to smother something very much like a sigh. We know that she can't help being brilliant, any more than the rest of us can help being—not so brilliant. But pep and enthusiasm, wit and a delightful sense of humor, and a wee bit of wistfulness—that's Elsie. But now the secret's out. Elsie has that lost art of blushing!

"She that was ever fair and never proud,

From a corner of the music studio come the soft whispering notes of a flute, and we know that Wiff is practicing again. It seems almost impossible that so much brilliance and talent could be stored up in one little, red-headed person, but Wiff is the living proof of that possibility, and very much alive, we should say. There's one little phrase that seems to fit Wiff, "She's so unusual."

Peg has a bright nod and a gay hello for everyone. Ever since Freshman year, she has entered right into the spirit of Middlebury, and has made many friends. She doesn't take college life at all as a comedy, but really lives it through and gains all its experiences. Each obstacle has only brought out the best in her, and added to those qualities she already had. "If at first you don't succeed" has been her motto, and we hand it to you, Peg.

MIDDLEBURY LIFE
The Athletic Council

The Athletic Council is the governing body which has supervision over all men's athletics. The membership of the organization is comprised of four members of the faculty, the director of athletics, and six undergraduates. These latter consist of the captains of the five major sports and the captains of the minor sports in season. The various athletic managers are ex-officio members of the Council.

Meetings are held at the discretion of the officers and are called at such times as there is any business to transact. Among the duties of the Council are the approval of all undergraduate athletic elections, the award of proper athletic insignia to eligible students, the receiving and payment of all funds of the Athletic Association, and the regulation of all sport schedules. This group is a very important factor in the athletic life of Middlebury and any decisions which it may reach are final.

A Vermont State Championship, his second in three years, was Coach Ben Beck's prize of the 1930 grid season. The loss of numerous stars that had brought Middlebury its first state championship in years in 1929, and, in particular, the loss of "Sammy" Guarnaccia, one of the greatest Blue and White ball-toters of all time, did not make the impending season look like one that would be a rollicking success. But the addition of frosh stars to those men who had already worked together for two and three years turned the trick. The Middlebury grid machine is again the champion of Vermont, and no matter how disastrously the rest of the schedule may have turned against the Beckmen, Norwich and Vermont have again been soundly trounced and the season may be rightly called a success.

In statistical terms, the record of the Blue and White is not impressive. Two victories and six defeats do not balance well, but considering the comparative sizes of the Beckmen and their opponents it is no more than should be expected. Columbia, Williams and Springfield College, three first rate teams, were the only ones to score decisive victories over the Blue. The Mass. Aggie, Boston University and R. P. I. games were lost by the margin of a single touchdown. Norwich was decisively defeated by the score of 18 to 0, and Vermont fell before the fighting Panthers to the tune of 26 to 6.

The record of the Beckmen is far superior to that of our State rivals, both larger colleges, and with the return of such men as Captain-elect Thrasher, Bakeman, Nelson, Hoyle, Markowski, and others, together with the stars of the 1934 freshman aggregation, it may be expected that the Blue and White will have an even more successful season in 1931.

COLUMBIA GAME

A powerful Columbia eleven ran rough shod over a smaller Panther team in the opening game of the season to win by a score of 48 to 0. Not once could the Blue offense register a first down and all of their aerial attempts went astray. The Lions, stronger than they have been in years, outweighed the Blue team by fifteen pounds to the man, and this advantage together with their additional training facilities and wealth of reserve material conceded them the victory in advance. Ralph Hewitt, star half back, led the Columbia scoring with three touchdowns and a point after one of them. Stanczyk, Tys, Hodupp and Sheridan added the other Columbia scores.

WILLIAMS GAME

The Middlebury grid warriors met with their second reverse of the season at Williamstown when the powerful Williams team came out on top of a 26 to 0 score. The Panther eleven put up a good battle, but weight and experience gave the Purple a decided edge and enabled them to run up a good score. Middlebury fought hard in the last two cantos and on two occasions came near scoring, but passes went wrong at each juncture and enabled the big Purple team to keep its goal line uncrossed. Williams played a steady but not spectacular game. Consistent advances gave them a score in each period.

M. A. C. GAME

The Beckmen lost the first home game of the season on Porter Field to the Mass. Aggies by a 7 to 0 score. Neither team could muster much weight, but the Aggies made up for their lack of poundage by scrappy play and thoroughly deserved to win the contest as they outplayed the Blue from beginning to end. Their backs were fast, hard plungers and the Panther defense found them difficult to stop. Had it not been for Thrasher who consistently broke up the Aggie plays before they could begin to function, the score might have been higher. Middlebury was forced to play without the services of Markowski and Whitman which did not help matters any.
BOSTON UNIVERSITY GAME

A single touchdown against Middlebury's second string team in the opening minutes of play gave Boston University a 7 to 0 victory over the Beckmen at Boston. The Blue regulars outplayed the Terriers throughout the latter part of the contest, but could not push it over. Time and again the Beckmen advanced to the Terrier's 10 yard line, but were unable to supply the punch to give them the score. The Beantowner's score resulted when "Moon" Mullins cut through a big hole in the Panther wall and raced 24 yards for the game's only tally. Shortly afterwards, the Blue regulars entered the contest and put up the best exhibition of football they had given so far during the season.

NORWICH GAME

The Beckmen shifted into high gear to trounce a favored Norwich eleven to the tune of 18 to 0 in the opening game of the State Series. Uncorking a powerful offense and an airtight defense, the Panther kept the ball in Norwich territory throughout the contest and led by the scintillating play of Hoyle coasted to a great victory.

Shortly after the opening whistle, Bakeman scored the first blue tally with an off-tackle slam from the six-yard line after he and Hoyle had alternated in carrying the ball from mid-field. Hoyle accounted for the other two scores of the game, one of them the conclusion of a beautiful 58-yard run in the third quarter.

The rejuvenated Blue team made 11 first downs to Norwich's 5, and gained a total of 368 yards by rushing as compared with 49 for Norwich. Hoyle was the individual star of the team, but the entire eleven played great football.

SPRINGFIELD GAME

Middlebury held Springfield College's powerful football team for three-quarters of the game at Porter Field, but could not last the rest of the contest and was overwhelmed 34 to 0. The Springfield first string eleven had to work hard to push over two scores in the first three periods, but the power of the regulars' offense so tired the Panther team that the Red and White reserves had an easy time of it in the last canto. The gymnasts used all different kinds of football to make their yardage while the Blue had to be content with gleaning an occasional first down through the medium of the forward pass. Owl and White, Springfield backs, were the stars of the day.

R. P. I. GAME

Middlebury and Rensselaer battled on a muddy field at Troy and after an uninteresting football game, the Engineers emerged victorious by a 6 to 0 score. A long run by Bliss, R. P. I. halfback, followed by a pass from Diehl to the same man in the second period, accounted for the only score of the contest.

For the most part, the entire game was played in the middle of the gridiron and only on rare occasions did either team find its way nearer its opponent's goal line than the 35-yard stripe. Middlebury had only one good scoring opportunity and penalties spoiled that. Rensselaer had two possible chances for a touchdown and made good on one of them.

VERMONT GAME

Middlebury successfully defended its State Title by decisively defeating the University of Vermont by a 26 to 6 score. A passing attack against the Blue substitutes gave the Cats their only tally, while the Panthers gained yardage wholesale and scored in every period except the first.

Hardy and Thrasher were outstanding among an impressive Blue team. The former's 50-yard run down the sidelines to a score, after intercepting a Vermont forward in the third period, was the most spectacular play of the game. Thrasher, personally accounting for two Blue touchdowns via the receiving end of a sparkling passing attack, was the outstanding man in the line and clearly showed why he is the best end in the state.

The final score hardly does justice to the superiority of the Panthers. Coach Beck and his entire Blue squad deserve every word of credit for the victory that made the season a success.

Facing what was perhaps one of the hardest frosh schedules in years, the 1934 yearling team was not too unsuccessful despite the fact that a statistical record shows but a single victory against one knotted score and three defeats. The victory was a 25 to 6 trouncing handed to the Norwich plebes, and the tie, a thirteen-all dead-lock, the result of a hard fought game with a highly touted Vermont frosh team. This lonesome victory and tie game more than remunerated Coach Hessler and his charges as it filled the all-important formula for the success of a Middlebury athletic season—the Panther Cubs had tied U.V.M. for the Freshmen Football Championship of Vermont.

For the season’s opener, the frosh journeyed to New York to battle the Clarkson Tech ’34. Outweighed by a more experienced team, the Panther Frosh totally were outclassed and the outcome was never in doubt. Despite the setback there were many evidences of potential strength. The line did not put up too bad a battle against opponents that outweighed them twenty pounds to the man, and the backs broke away for numerous long gains which, if properly placed, would have resulted in touchdowns. The backfield seemed particularly strong with Williams, scrappy quarterback, punting, passing, and running, and Fallon, Riccio and Anderson mainly specializing in good ball carrying.
In their initial home appearance, the Panther Cubs lost to a strong Clark school team by a single touchdown. The Blue yearlings fought hard on every play, forcing the Clark aggregation to resort to the aerial route as a source of both their touchdowns. Late in the game, Middlebury brought the ball within scoring position through a pass, Williams to Hickcox, from where Riccio took it over for the Cubs' first score.

It was becoming evident that the line was going to be the source of Hessler's main troubles. The entire forward wall was game, but far too light to stand the punishment of a hard game. The wings were strong with Reid and Hickcox holding down their jobs in good shape, but Captain Simmons was the only other member of the line who could be relied upon for a full game.

The first game of the State series was played with U.V.M. at Centennial Field. Vermont drew first blood when Smith caught one of Williams' punts and zigzagged his way through the entire Blue team for the first tally. A series of unfortunate fumbles on Vermont's part gave the Panther Cubs a break, and before the half had ended Middlebury was in the lead, 13 to 6. In the opening minutes of the second half, Vermont fought its way to another touchdown tying the score at 13 all, and the game continued to its end without further threats of scoring from either team. Saba and Smith were the Vermont bulkwalls, while the Middlebury backfield was brilliant in comparison with its uncertain line.

On November first the Panther frosh encountered their strongest opponent of the year in the Vermont Academy aggregation, and were decisively trimmed to the tune of 51 to 2. Captain Simmons and Blacher both warmed the Middlebury bench due to injuries suffered in the Vermont game, and the already weak Blue line was without its only semblance of strength. Riccio, Midd fullback, was the only Panther that approached the average weight of the V.A. gridsters, and, as a result, most of the Middlebury regulars saw the game from the bench because of their lack of poundage.

The redeeming feature of the frosh season was the showing of the Panther Cubs against the Norwich Plebes. Perhaps the Blue Yearlings outweighed the Plebes a bit, but in any event they outplayed them. Except for a brief lapse in the third quarter when a Norwich march netted them their only score, Hessler's men had things all their own way. The final score was 25 to 6 with the Panther scoring in the first, second, and fourth periods. Hickcox accounted for the first tally on a pass from Williams, Riccio scored the second on a three-yard plunge through left guard, and Williams personally escorted the pigskin behind the goal line on its last two trips.

The Season

At the beginning of the 1930-1931 basketball season, Coach Ben Beck faced the prospect of building a new team about two veterans, Captain "Harry" Bullukian and "Ray" Ashdown. How well he accomplished his difficult task may be judged from the record of the team: seven victories out of a hard schedule of thirteen games, and second place in the Green Mountain Basketball Conference. Vermont was twice defeated and St. Michael's broke even in two games, but a strong, veteran Norwich team twice proved the Panther's stumbling block and with the victories went the championship.

Interest in the opening game of the season was high. The Beckmen won from a hard fighting Clarkson Tech outfit by a single point, but the narrow margin of the victory was more than off-set by the sterling performance of the Panthers who outplayed their opponents in every phase of the game but were unable to find the basket with any degree of consistency. Hoyle, MacKenzie, and Corliss, sophomore players, showed great promise of more than filling the shoes of Spooner, Casey, and Humes-ton, and predictions as to a Conference championship were numerous. Holy Cross took the Beckmen down a peg in the first encounter of a two game trip, but the Blue and White were easy victors over Worcester. The New York State Teacher's College quintet and St. Stephen's were next to fall before scoring sprees of the Panthers, but a clever R. P. I. combination took Middlebury into camp by a 45 to 30 score.

In the first state series game, the Beckmen quickly piled up a thirteen point lead to give them a close victory over St. Michael's. The entire game was hard and fast, but, although they came close, the early Panther lead was too much for the Winooski players to overcome. In the Norwich game at Rutland, the Blue team had the better part of a 20 to 14 lead at half time, but the Cadets went on a scoring spree in the latter part of the game and won a decisive victory. The defeat by Norwich was made up for in a degree by a sparkling defeat of Vermont at Burlington. The game was close and the score see-sawed back and forth from beginning to end. First one team would lead and then the other, but the final gun found Middlebury on the long end of the 28 to 24 score.

An exceptionally fast Springfield College aggregation took the Panther into camp, but the Beckmen regained their stride by another victory over St. Michael's. Vermont was again the victim of the Blue in a fast game that required an extra period to de-cide the issue, but Norwich was not to be denied in the final encounter of the season and the Beckmen had to be satisfied that they were the second best team in the State.

Only one man, Captain Bullukian, will be lost to the team this year. The others, Ashdown, Corliss, MacKenzie, and Hoyle, will be back, and with the experience gained during this season's basketball activity they should perform in championship style. Candidates for the remaining position are numerous, and even the present regulars will find their hands full in maintaining their present status. Sweet, a center who was ineligible this year, will be ready to live up to the name he made for himself during the latter part of last year. Chalmers, at present a freshman, has already proven his worth as a high-scoring forward in the few games he has been eligible to play due to the ruling concerning freshman athletes. Others are Williams, Cushing, Flagg, Baumgartner, Murphy, Anderson, Olson, Scozzafava, Ragatz, Hess and Johnson. All are experienced men who are ready to jump into the position of any regular who fails to stand the pace. Middlebury adherents are certain to see a team on the floor that will give our state rivals a royal battle for the Conference Basketball Championship.

CLARKSON GAME

The Beckmen opened their season with a one point win from the hard fighting Clarkson Tech quintet, 19 to 18. The Blue and White’s superiority in every phase of the game except the shooting department was in evidence throughout the contest, and the final score gives no real estimation of the Panther’s ability. Hoyle and MacKenzie, sophomore guards, together with Corliss, sophomore center, showed great promise of more than filling the shoes of the men who had been lost to the team through graduation, while Ashdown and Captain Bullukian, seasoned veterans, continued to prove their merit. Ashdown was high scorer for the evening with nine points to his credit.

HOLY CROSS GAME

The Holy Cross quintet was too tall and rugged for the Blue and White in the game played at Worcester and Middlebury went down to defeat, 42 to 23. The first half was a tight battle and the Crusaders were only able to hold a slight lead until the very end when a trio of baskets gave them a 17 to 10 lead at the half. The second stanza was a different story with the big purple team pulling steadily away until the hopes of a Blue and White victory were completely smothered. Schoenrock, left forward, starred for Holy Cross and was high scorer with 15 points to his credit. Captain Bullukian led the Middlebury scoring with 7 points.

WORCESTER GAME

The Blue and White easily defeated Worcester Tech to the tune of 30 to 27. The first half saw the Middlebury quintet getting off to a fast start and running up an immediate lead to virtually assure them the victory. The Beckman’s passing attack was working in fine shape, and the Techsters were unable to break through to any great extent. The Blue and White were in possession of the ball for the greater part of the game and at half time the Beckmen had a safe lead of 20 to 12.

N. Y. S. T. C. GAME

The Panther five won from the New York State Teachers’ College by a score of 35 to 21 in a fast game that was marred by numerous personal fouls. Starting with a rush, the Beckmen scored point after point to run up a good lead which the Teachers were never able to threaten. Corliss was having a big night and was continually fouled by the New Yorkers in an endeavor to stop his scoring. The Middlebury center accounted for nine points via the foul route which, together with four goals from the floor, gave him the high scoring honors for the evening.

ST. STEPHEN’S GAME

Captain Bullukian and ‘Ray’ Ashdown went on a scoring spree, and as a result St. Stephen’s was snowed under by a score of 50 to 35. After a close first half which ended with the Beckmen in a 28 to 20 lead, due to a belated spurt, the Blue and White asserted itself and what had been a close battle was turned into a free scoring contest.
with Middlebury drawing further and further away from the Annandale lads. Ashdown was high scorer with 20 points to his credit while Captain Bullukian accounted for one point less.

R. P. I. GAME

R. P. I. took a tired Middlebury quintet into camp at Troy by a score of 45 to 30. With the R. P. I. substitutes in the game for the initial period, the Panthers ran up what appeared to be a commanding lead, but this was short lived as the engineers' first team played rings around the Blue and White in the concluding stanza. Warren, R. P. I. left forward, was high scorer for the evening with 16 points while Ashdown and Bullukian gleaned 8 points for the Beckmen.

ST. MICHAEL'S GAME

A thirteen point lead piled up before their opponents could get started sufficed to give Middlebury's court team a 24 to 22 victory over St. Michael's in the Panther's first state series game. The entire game was hard and fast, and was featured by a splendid exhibition of close guarding by both teams. Middlebury led at the half, 16 to 9, but after the intermission the visitors came back with a rush and rapidly cut into the Panther's lead. The Purple exhibited a fine floor game, but seemed to have luck against them on the shooting.

NORWICH GAME

The Norwich University quintet defeated the Beckmen at Rutland to the tune of 36 to 26. With Ashdown working in great style the Blue and White ran up a 20 to 14 lead during the first stanza and the chances for a victory seemed good. The second half saw the Norwich team finding its scoring power, and with Ashdown out of the game, Hartford and Washburn proceeded to send the horsemen into the van. Middlebury fought hard up to the final gun, but the shooting of the Norwich stars was too much to overcome.

VERMONT GAME

Middlebury defeated Vermont in a fast state series game at Burlington by the score of 28 to 24. The game was a see-saw contest from start to finish. The lead changed hands nine times and at five different times the scoring was even. The Catamounts' inability to make foul shots count provided the margin. Ashdown with nine points was high scorer while Bullukian was right on his heels with eight points. The Vermont scoring was divided between eight men with Talbert taking the high honors with six points.

SPRINGFIELD GAME

The Beckmen were defeated by the Springfield College quintet by a 47 to 28 score. The first half found the Panther quintet matching basket for basket with their physical culture rivals and ended with the score 21 to 18 in favor of the visitors. But the second half was a different story. No Panther regular was able to score from the floor during this second half and what Middlebury scoring there was came as a result of two foul shots and the accuracy of a freshman substitute, Chalmers.
ST. MICHAEL'S GAME

St. Michael’s closed its season at Winooski park by defeating Middlebury by a 34 to 29 score. Though weakened by the absence of MacKenzie in the backcourt and the inability of Ashdown to come to top form due to injury, the Panther five was a constant threat to the Purple lead and all but overcame it several times. Devine, St. Michael’s left forward, was high scorer for the evening while Chalmers led the Beckmen with nine points.

VERMONT GAME

Middlebury defeated the University of Vermont in an exceptionally fast and close contest by a 44 to 39 score. At the close of the regular playing period the count stood at thirty-six all thereby necessitating an overtime period. Winant, Vermont guard, missed a free throw thirty-eight seconds from the close of the last period which would have given the visitors the victory had the leather gone through the netting. At one time during the first half Vermont led by five points, and Middlebury also had the same lead in the middle of the second half. Ashdown was high point scorer with eight floor goals and three fouls for a total of nineteen points.

NORWICH GAME

The Beckmen ended their season by losing to Norwich at Northfield by a score of 45 to 19. The Middmen were completely outclassed by the Maroon hoopsters. Eighteen minutes of the first half had passed before Ashdown was able to glean the first Blue and White field goal. Norwich, on the other hand, paced by their star, Captain Hartford, sank basket after basket to give them a 25 to 8 lead at half time. Before the game had ended the Maroon captain had accounted for 22 points, 20 of which were from the floor. As a result of their sterling victory, Norwich became the champions of the Green Mountain Conference, a position they well deserved.

The Season

For the eighth time in as many years the Middlebury College ice sextet is again the champions of Vermont. The state rivals, Norwich and Vermont, were not only unable to defeat the Panther skaters, but were unable to score a single goal. Norwich was twice defeated to the tunes of 5 to 0 and 10 to 0 while Vermont was vanquished by a 3 to 0 score, poor ice preventing the speedy Panthers from running up a more impressive score in the latter game.

The schedule, consisting of ten games, was probably the most difficult ever attempted by a Middlebury sextet, but the strongest team that ever wore the Blue and White came through with six victories, one tie and three defeats. Five of the six victories were shut-outs and the defeats were suffered at the hands of strong teams representing Brown, Harvard and Princeton. Such a successful season distinctly vindicates the promotion of hockey to a major sport at Middlebury.

Coach "Dick" Phelan, former Holy Cross football star, had practically the same men back to work with and each and every one of them continued to present the same sterling performances that had marked them as outstanding in previous years. Four regulars will be lost to the team when they don the cap and gown this June, but their places will be adequately taken care of by candidates from the freshman and sophomore classes. The men who graduate are Captain "Walt" Crocker, ex-captain "Capt" Foote, "Red" Huntington, and "Web" Webster. However, such men as Yeomans, MacLean, Viehman, Allen, Swett, Pickens, Goering, and the Melbye brothers will be back together with Makela and Nelson, high scorers of the year, and Blue and White adherents may well look forward to a team that will produce the ninth consecutive Panther hockey championship.

The leader of the Blue forces, Captain Crocker, was not a flashy nor high-scoring player, but his steadiness and clear-thinking combined with some excellent stick-handling made him a bulwark of strength on both the offense and defense. From a scoring standpoint, Makela, right wing, and Nelson, center ice, were the stars of the team, and, fortunately, both will be back for further action next year. Makela accounted for eighteen of the team’s points during the course of the year, and his speed and sensational puck-handling have been sensational. Nelson puts the same vim and vigor into hockey that characterizes his playing of any sport, and, besides personally chalking up nine goals, his assists have been indirectly responsible for the scoring of numerous others. Foote and Huntington combined to keep most opponents at a safe distance from the Panther cage, and have done a good job in all instances. Webster’s goal-tending has been a feature of many games during the two years he has been a regular, and much credit is due him for the success of the defense line. All of the men worked together with a true spirit of cooperation throughout the year, and not a little credit is due Coach Phelan for the record of his 1930-1931 hockey champions.

HAMILTON GAME

The season started off in good shape when Phelan’s men easily defeated a strong Hamilton College team by the score of 4 to 0. It was the first and last defeat of the season for the Hamilton team, and speaks well for the ability of the Panthers, Middlebury surpassing their opponents in both individual playing and team work. Hamilton missed several opportunities to score when the puck was free and near the Panther goal, but Captain Crocker and his men took advantage of every opportunity and had the situation well in hand from beginning to end.

BROWN GAME

The first Middlebury defeat was largely due to the brilliant performance of Hutton, the Bruins’ goalie, but the Providence skaters were also in fine form and continually broke through the defense of the Blue and White pucksters. Brown was ahead from start, scoring two goals in the opening stanza, but Middlebury held during the second period only to weaken in the final stanza to let Crane, veteran wing, slip the puck past Webster for the third and final score.

PRINCETON GAME

Beaten 3 to 2 in last year’s Princeton game, the Panthers put their best into this contest but again went down to defeat by a score of 5 to 3. Makela was the individual star of the game and turned in the most brilliant performance of his hockey career, making all three goals for his team and displaying some wonderful skating and stick-work. For two periods the game was nip and tuck with the score tied at three all, but in the final stanza Middlebury was unable to cope with the fresh reserves of the Tiger attack and Whitman twice drove the puck into the net to insure the Princeton victory.

WILLIAMS’ GAME

Tired from their hard Princeton game the Panther pucksters were unable to do better than tie Williams at four all. The strong Purple team scored all of their points in the first thirteen minutes of play, and things looked bad for Phelan’s men but the Panther icemen came back strong and finally tied the count when Nelson scored from a penalty face-off in front of the net. The necessary overtime period was fast, but neither team was able to break through the opponent’s defense.
HARVARD GAME

Playing their third hard game in as many days, and relying mainly on their defensive strength, the Middlebury skaters held Harvard's powerful sextet to six goals. Prophets of the ice sport had forecasted almost twice as great a score for Harvard's team and the Panther defense especially deserved the praise it received for holding the fast skating Crimson team to the low score. The Middlebury offense looked good at times, but fatigue from previous games told on its performance. Three of the Crimson goals came in the final stanza and at no time could the game be called a walkaway for the Bostonians.

AMHERST GAME

The first home game of the year saw Phelan's men romping to an easy victory over a mediocre Amherst aggregation by a score of 6 to 3. Makela was in fine form and personally accounted for three Blue and White tallies all occurring in the last period while Nelson, Huntington and Yeomans gleaned the other Panther scores. Captain Williams, Amherst right wing, starred on the offense for the visitors. Time after time he would skate through the entire Middlebury sextet only to have his shot blocked by Webster who was having a big day stopping the puck from all angles.

NORWICH GAME

The hill-and-dale surface of the Northfield ice lessened the skill and interest which have been conspicuous in other Panther engagements of the year, and Coach Phelan's men had to be content with a 5 to 0 victory over Norwich in the opening game of the state series. A victory had been conceded to the Blue and White before the game began, but the score does not indicate the superiority of the Panther team which completely outclassed its opponent skaters. Makela continued to star for the Blue with two goals and some fine team work while Crocker, Foote and Yeomans combined to account for the other three.
ST. STEPHEN'S GAME

Coach Phelan's Blue regulars plus his entire squad of substitutes romped to an easy victory over a weak St. Stephen's team. The final score was 10 to 0 and had the first string men seen action throughout the game it might have well been doubled. Captain Bloomquist, Crimson goalie, had a heavy afternoon making thirty-four saves in three periods not counting the shots he did not save while Webster and Allen, Panther goalies, might have well remained in the locker room as their services were required on but nine occasions.

NORWICH GAME

In a not especially interesting contest, Norwich again went down to defeat before the Middlebury pucksters to the tune of 10 to 0. Once again the Blue substitutes were given a chance to show their merit and they performed very creditably. Makela brought home the high scoring honors with four goals to his credit while Yeomans accounted for two and Crocker, Nelson, Chappell and Melbye each dented the net with singletons. Five of the Panther goals were scored in the last stanza with the help of freshmen and sophomore substitutes which speaks well for future Middlebury hockey aspirations.

VERMONT GAME

The Panther ice men concluded their hockey activities for the season by defeating the University of Vermont by a 3 to 0 score. Poor ice accounted for a poor display of hockey. The contest was intended as a star event of home-coming week, but neither team could display its best hockey due to numerous pitfalls in the surface of the ice. Webster had an easy afternoon in the Panther net, only being called upon to make five easy saves while Hendricks, Vermont goalie, had to use all of his facilities to keep twenty-six Panther drives from counting. Nelson was in top form and collected two goals while Makela was accounting for the other.

The Season

Spring time chatter about Middlebury's baseball prospects for the 1930 season was far from being optimistic. With Captain Willis, Sorenson, Kelly, Anderson, and Douglas lost to the team through graduation a heavy burden was left on the shoulders of the few remaining veterans. Raymond Franzoni had been elected captain for the 1930 season, but left college and "Red" Cook was chosen to lead the team. With Franzoni gone too, the entire infield was lost, and it remained for Coach Hessler to build up a practically new team, his only veterans being Humeston, Nelson and Jacobs in the outfield, and Cook and McDermott, pitchers.

There was a large response to the call for baseball candidates, and work was begun in the gymnasium. Cold weather, rain and snow combined to keep the squad indoors almost to the first of May, but when the Weather Man finally permitted regular practise sessions to be held on Porter Field, Coach Hessler was fortunate in finding some excellent infield material in the freshman class which bidded fair to more than fill the shoes of those who had been lost through graduation. The infield was a brand new combination consisting of Hartrey behind the bat, and Nelson, Jacobs, Yeomans and Sorenson on the bases; all were freshmen except Jacobs and Nelson who had been outfielders in previous years. The outfield was well taken care of by such veterans as Humeston, Hasseltine and Olson, and the pitching staff was bolstered by the return of "Forrie" Spooner for another semester's work.

Late in April an unseasoned Panther nine left for a three game tour in Massachusetts, and despite the fact that two of these three games were lost, a feeling of optimism concerning a good season began to germinate for the defeats were suffered by one and two run margins. In the Williams game, the initial encounter of the season, the Blue and White, had run up a 5 to 1 lead only to have the game called in the fourth inning because of snow. "Forrie" Spooner got off to a poor start against the Mass Aggies in the second game, and they tallied twice in the first inning. Following this he tightened up, and with the exception of a lone score in the fourth inning, he held the Aggies well in hand until the eighth when they scored four runs by virtue of two passes and a series of infield errors. Except for the two bad innings the Panther nine played good ball, but they were not good enough to win. The final score was 7 to 5 against them.

In the final game of their first trip, Hessler's men were outplayed by Springfield in a close contest. The gymnasts played consistent ball throughout the game while the Blue team's brilliancy was spasmodic. The scoring was nip and tuck until the eighth inning when the Springfield batsmen squeezed a single run across the plate to take the lead. Middlebury was unable to retaliate, and the game ended with Springfield the victor, 7 to 6.

The Naval training school journeyed to Middlebury for the first home game of the season, and went down to defeat to the tune of 8 to 5. "Red" Cook held the sailors in check for eight innings but in the final stanza the gobs broke loose and slammed three scores across the pan. However, the early lead of the Panthers was too great, and Hessler's men were able to chalk up their first victory.

In the first game of the state series the Panther nine bowed to the Catamounts as "Lefty" Cummings took away whatever batting eyes the Middlebury batsmen brought to the game with them. Cook pitched a great game for the Blue, but two of his hooks were straightened out for three bases apiece in the third inning. These hits were converted into runs, and the meagre Vermont lead was too much to overcome. The Blue and White threatened in the eighth inning when Humeston's hit scored Hasseltine, but Cummings came through in good style and the game ended with Vermont the victor, 2 to 1.

The second game of the conference series with Norwich was a queer affair. Spooner started on the mound for the Blue and White, but through no fault of his own was forced to vacate in the fifth inning in favor of McDermott who could do no better. The Panther infield booted the ball all over the lot, and continuous errors resulted in a decisive series of runs for the Cadets. The Norwich men scored in every inning except the fourth, and the final score was 10 to 5 in their favor.

After their disastrous showings against Vermont and Norwich, Coach Hessler's charges journeyed to Boston, and partly redeemed themselves by trouncing Northeastern University to the tune of 11 to 6. Captain Cook was the outstanding star in this game, getting three hits, two of them being doubles, as well as turning in an excellent game on the mound. The Panther nine showed a decided improvement in all departments, and completely deserved the victory.

Returning to Porter Field, the Blue and White continued to prove their worth, and pounded their way to an easy victory over Springfield. The final score was 13 to 5 and more than squared the 7 to 6 defeat suffered at the gymnasts' hands earlier in the spring. The Middlebury sluggers, led by Humeston, Hasseltine, and Jacobs, pounded the horsehide all over the lot, and Springfield never once threatened.

Again playing on Porter Field, the Panther nine lost a hotly contested game to Clarkson Tech. The final score was 5 to 4, and it took the opposing teams ten innings to decide the issue. Middlebury scored all of its runs in the first two innings, but from then on the game was all Clarkson's. The team went well in the field, and McDermott pitched a fine game, but after the first two innings the Panther batsmen were unable to bunch their hits in a manner that counted.

In the return game with Vermont, the Green and Gold came up from behind to win a game that Middlebury already had on the fire. With the score three to nothing against them in the ninth inning, the Vermont coach sent in Jay, a pinch hitter. Mr. Jay obliged by knocking the ball out of the lot for a home run, scoring himself and two others, thereby tying the score. Vermont pushed over the winning run in the tenth inning, and Middlebury had to be content with the knowledge that they might have won if Mr. Jay had not appeared. This game witnessed the last battle between two fine twirlers, Cook and Cummings. Cummings was the first to weaken, but when the Catamounts did get to Cook it was in no uncertain terms.

St. Michael's journeyed to Porter Field with confidence, but were turned back with ease. The Panther stickmen hammered the horsehide in fine style, and bunched their hits when it counted. Humeston, Jacobs, Nelson, and Hartrey starred at the bat while McDermott pitched a great game, allowing but few hits and those were well scattered.
The final game of the season was played against St. Lawrence at Canton, New York. Captain Cook climaxed his collegiate pitching career by holding the highly touted St. Lawrence sluggers to two hits, and the Blue and White came through to a 5 to 0 victory. Middlebury opened its attack in the fourth inning and slammed two markers across the plate. From that time the game was all Blue and White, and the Panthers ended their season with a vengeance.

Graduation, as usual, took its toll, and the loss of certain men will be keenly felt. When Captain Cook and Spooner donned the cap and gown they left McDermott the only seasoned pitcher on the staff. Humeston, Hasseltine and Jacobs leave the Panther artillery greatly weakened and their shoes will be hard to fill. Despite this mortality, however, there are reasons to look forward to a successful 1931 season. The infield will remain intact except for the absence of Jacobs on the second sack. Hartrey should again take good care of the receiving end of the battery, and with Olson and Crocker returning to the outfield, only one new man is needed in that division. The pitching staff will be the chief source of Hessler's worries, but perhaps a kind Providence will supply him some freshman twirlers for 1931 the same as he was presented with a freshman infield in 1930.

Robert M. Dalton, Captain
The Season

The Panther track team again decisively won the Green Mountain Conference title in a manner that left but little doubt in the minds of those concerned that Coach Brown had turned out one of the finest teams that ever wore the Blue and White. Captain Dalton's men suffered but one defeat throughout the season, and that in the opening meet of the year at the hands of a strong Williams' team. Middlebury was defeated by the slim margin of six points, and had this meet occurred later in the year when the Panther dash and hurdle men had approached the top of their form, the outcome would have most certainly been reversed.

An outdoor board track was available at Middlebury for the first time, and gave Coach Brown's charges a hitherto impossible opportunity for extensive pre-season training. This new training facility combined with Coach Brown's excellent coaching and the natural ability of his candidates accounts for the success of the season and for the glorious climax in which our conference rivals were completely trounced at Northfield, Middlebury scoring 83 points to 27½ for Norwich and 24½ for Vermont. In this meet the Panther took 11 of the first 15 places, winning every running event with the exception of the low hurdles in which two Blue and White freshmen finished second and third.

The outstanding man of the season was the versatile freshman star, Boyd Brown, who broke the college broad jump record in his first meet, was high scorer for the season, and amassed a total number of points in the conference meet which exceeded that of the entire Vermont team.

Middlebury loses three record holders by graduation in the persons of Captain Dalton, Guarnaccia, Tomlinson and Goltry. The trio were consistent winners in their events and their losses will be sorely felt, but the outlook for the 1931 season is nothing but promising as each man had capable understudies who pushed him continually and should come into prominence this year.

WILLIAMS 70½—MIDDLEBURY 64½

The Blue and White's showing against one of the finest of Williams' track teams in years was an optimistic forerunner of the successful season that was to follow. A marked weakness in the sprints and hurdles was somewhat redeemed by the efforts of the Panther entrants in the field events. The Purple and White took all places in the 100 yard dash and the 120 yard high hurdles and also won the first two places in the 220 yard dash and 220 yard low hurdles while Middlebury handily took five of seven first places in the field events. Boyd Brown, husky freshman, entered in his first collegiate track meet, proved his worth by setting a new Middlebury record for the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet, 2¾ inches. "Sammy" Guarnaccia also broke into the record breaking ranks by putting the shot 41 feet, 9 inches. Williams' six point triumph was not in the least impressive, and had it not been for an unfortunate attack of cramps which forced Captain Dalton out of the two mile run, the meet might well have gone to Middlebury.

Again showing surprising strength in the field events, the Panther track team easily defeated St. Lawrence and Hamilton in a tri-angular track meet held at Canton. Middlebury field men took six of seven first places in the field events which, together with numerous points gleaned in the runner-up positions, were enough in themselves to win the meet. Goltry and Thayer were the only blue and white runners to win their events, but a noticeable improvement was shown in the dashes and hurdles where Bibby, Brown, MacLean and Hoyle were beginning to come into their own. Hanson and Captain Dalton ran their usually fine races in the mile and two mile but were defeated by the Hamilton Iron man, Pritchard. Brown was high scorer of the meet, placing in five events and accounting for a total of 12 points while Guarnaccia and Paul were both victorious in two events.

MIDDLEBURY 8½—COLBY 52½

In the first and only home meet of the season, a feature of Junior Week, Captain Dalton’s track team swept to an easy victory over Colby. Two Middlebury College records were broken in the field events, Tomlinson heaving the javelin to a new distance of 157 feet 10½ inches and Guarnaccia annexing his second record of the year by tossing the discus 127 feet 3¾ inches. The Panthers broke even with the Colby men in the running events, each team taking four first places. The field events continued to be the Blue and White’s strength, Coach Brown’s men taking five of the seven possible first places and making a clean sweep of the broad jump. Brown was high scorer of the meet with a first in the broad jump, two seconds in the dashes and a third in the shot put.

SUMMARIES:

100 Yard Dash—Won by Martin (C); Brown (M), second; Bibby (M), third. Time: 10.3 sec.

High scoring honors go to Brown of Middlebury and Fletcher of Colby, both of whom scored 11 points. The Blue and White freshman star took second place in both dashes and first in the broad jump, while his competitor from Maine won both hurdles and placed third in the high jump.

NEW ENGLAND INTERCOLLEGIATES

Coach Brown journeyed to Worcester, Mass., with ten of his track team to compete in the New England Intercollegiates with teams from twelve of the foremost colleges in this section of the country. Middlebury placed seventh but would have done much better had more than ten men been able to make the trip. The fact that freshman material was not allowed to compete was another drawback inasmuch as the services of Boyd Brown, in particular, were missing. “Sammy” Guarnaccia placed twice in the meet gleaning a second in the discus throw and a fourth in the shot put while Captain Dalton had to be content with a fourth in the mile run. Thayer ran a beautiful race to take a fourth in a hotly contested half mile run.
CONFERENCE MEET

Coach Brown's track team ended their 1930 season with a glorious triumph over Norwich and Vermont to again win the State Track Championship. The entire team performed in true championship style, and the Middlebury total of 83 points is the largest number of points ever piled up by any of the three rivals. Boyd Brown, freshman star, temporarily concluded his track activities by amassing a total number of points that was greater than that of the entire Vermont team and only 1 1/2 points less than that of Norwich. Panther runners took first place in all but one of the running events; Hoyle, a freshman, was nosed out by Hurley of Norwich in the 220 low hurdles. MacLean, another frosh, won the high hurdles while Brown and Bibby were finishing one-two in the dashes. This should be sufficient evidence that the weak spots of the early season, the hurdles and dashes, will be well taken care of in the near future.

The Middlebury College Tennis Team experienced a fairly successful season which ended with four victories, one tie, and five defeats. Three of these defeats and the tie match occurred on the first trip of the season. Poor weather had afforded little opportunity for the squad to obtain any considerable pre-season training, and the consequent rustiness was more than noticeable. On May second, Middlebury was defeated 5 to 2 by Holy Cross; the hilltoppers presented a well balanced team and Woodbury and Sloper were the only Panthers who could turn in a victory. The following day the second match of the season was lost to Clark University with Woodbury's victory all that saved Midd from a complete washout. On May third the Blue and White tied a strong Boston University team, but in the afternoon a tired team fell before the Tufts' team at Medford by a score of 6 to 2. Woodbury and Raeder won all of their matches of the day while Sloper was victorious in his B. U. match. Vermont and St. Michael's were easily defeated in the state matches by the same score of 5 to 1. Williams came next on the schedule and completely swamped the Blue team. St. Lawrence was defeated by a count of 5 to 1 and W. P. I. defeated Middlebury by the same score. A 4 to 2 win over St. Michael's concluded the season, and Middlebury at least had the consolation that they had the best team in the state.
Losing only two meets in its entire schedule the 1930 cross country team retained the state conference title for Middlebury. Despite early season forecasts, which were not encouraging, the runners showed surprising strength in defeating Williams, St. Stephen's, and Vermont. The fourth victory of the team resulted from a forfeiture by Norwich.

Williams was represented by a strong team, but in the first meet of the season for them, the Middlebury runners decisively won 23-32 on the Williamstown course. The following week little trouble was experienced with St. Stephen's and another Panther victory was gained by a score of 24-31. After Norwich had forfeited the Blue runners were outpointed 20-35 by Springfield on the home course. The Rensselaer Polytechnic team was too strong on its own course and Middlebury again lost 23-32.

The closest run of the season resulted in bringing the state championship to Middlebury. A Vermont man brought his team first place, but Perrin and Harwood tied for second, and were closely followed by Cox, so that the Blue and White won 25-30 over its greatest rival.
The freshman cross country team was victorious in the two state conference meets which comprised its schedule. The harriers of both the University of Vermont and Norwich were met in dual encounters and in both instances Middlebury won by a safe margin.

The Norwich team was met on a cold damp day which afforded none but the muddiest and most treacherous of footing. Sears took first place with a comfortable margin and Seymour pushed the cadet who finished second. The rest of the Middlebury runners were not far behind and easily outpointed the cadet freshmen 24-31.

The Vermont team was met on the Middlebury course, and despite the fact that the visitors took first and second places the Panther freshman won 25-30. Five of the home team, Seymour, Sears, Bugbee, Cushing, and Carter followed the two Vermont leaders and kept the Middlebury score low enough for a victory and a state conference title.
The Cheerleaders

Great improvement in the organization of cheerleading has taken place in Middlebury within the past few years. At the present time a staff of three men take care of this very important part of the athletic contests. All freshmen are eligible to compete in the tryouts which take place early in the fall. Positions on the staff are distributed at the discretion of the veteran members.

The cheerleaders lead all organized cheering and singing at football, basketball, and baseball games, as well as playing a very important part in the athletic rallies. During the football season members of the staff accompany the team on several of the trips which are made away from Middlebury.

Intramural Athletics

An extensive intramural athletic program is conducted each year in the men's college by the athletic department. Nine teams, representing each fraternity and the Neutral body, compete in seven sports. Points are awarded for the winners and runners-up, and each organization that is represented in a sport receives entry points. The group which at the end of the college year has amassed the largest total is presented with "The Trophy of Trophies," a large silver cup which may be held during the following year.

Members of athletic squads are not eligible for competition in the sport in which they represent the college.

The Women’s Athletic Association got off to a flying start to make this year a success. Women from Vermont and St. Lawrence met here October 18, to enjoy a Playday with Middlebury. In spite of the chill northwest wind which swept across the hockey field finally forcing the participants to seek refuge in the gym, lusty cheers gave proof of an active interest and keen enthusiasm. By forming teams on which the players were representatives of all three colleges, it was the hope of W. A. A. to encourage a finer inter-collegiate spirit, and if women from Middlebury and Vermont seen laughing and joking together is any indication, this end has indeed been achieved. Plans have also been made for several other Play-days to be held in the spring.

Men may play ice hockey and awe the world, but let them once get their hands on a field hockey stick! For the first time in the history of Middlebury, men have been allowed to participate in women’s athletics. At the Hockey Bonfire a team of men, who mistook a hockey stick for a golf club, tried their luck against the Championship team. If we are to judge by the laughs of the audience, this first joint athletic event was a marked success. Since no fatalities have been recorded, it may be safe to try similar experiments in other years.

Miss Young, Director of Women’s Athletics, has returned from her leave of absence, bringing renewed enthusiasm to W. A. A. For some time the Council has felt the need of standard training rules, and urged by Miss Young, W. A. A. has drawn up a simplified set of rules which will apply to all sports.
Baseball

Spring baseball brought out a large number of enthusiastic supporters. The weather was ideal and the field was in good condition throughout all the inter-class games. The season was a great success, in spite of the fact that many girls were ineligible to play as they had already participated in three sports.

The series was a nip and tuck affair, but after many exciting innings, the juniors came through with the championship. They again decisively proved their superiority over the three other classes, when four of their group were chosen members of the All-Midd team.

Basketball

After a long and unusual basketball season, the sophomores gained their second championship of the year. Delay after delay stretched the playing season out until spring vacation. In spite of the many postponements, the players retained their unabated interest throughout the series. Constant practice and careful attention to the timing of plays resulted in many close contests. The sophomore team succeeded in defeating all opponents and thereby gained the championship without a loss to mar its record. They were followed closely by the three other class teams who waged an interesting series for second place honors which finally fell to the lot of the juniors.

Inasmuch as the playing season was unduly prolonged, the annual basketball banquet was not held. All-Midd honors are divided between the four classes.

The Sophomores carried off the honors in Volley Ball this year in a season which was full of unexpected victories. Two rounds of games were scheduled by the manager, Catherine Carrick, '32.

The first ended with the Juniors well in the lead, but they weakened in the next few games and it looked as if the second round was going to finish in a triple tie between the three upper classes. This was prevented, however, when the Freshmen defeated the Seniors for their only victory of the year, leaving the Juniors and Sophomores to play the deciding match. The Sophomores took the match and the championship with a rather easy two game victory.

The hockey season this year was very intense, and enthusiasm increased rather than abated as it progressed. Perhaps the new set of W. A. A. training rules was responsible for the constant support which all the class teams received. Keen competition and friendly rivalry was evident throughout. The class team of '32, by virtue of its accurate passing and splendid co-operation, succeeded in dethroning the sophomores, and gained the championship.

The hockey bonfire brought the season to a successful close, and at this time the announcement was made of those selected for the All-Middlebury team for their excellence in this sport. An amusing exhibition match between a group of men and the championship team was a feature of the day.

Tennis

Rare is the occasion when a Freshman walks off with the tennis championship, but when Zavart Markarian '33 entered the lists, she accomplished this very thing. The spring tournament of 1930 had the usual number of entries, and the matches were hard-fought and well-played. One by one players were eliminated until the final match between Miss Markarian and Miriam Hasseltine '31. Those who watched the playing of this match were unable to detect any superiority of technique. It was a long contest, lasting over two hours, and success depended largely on endurance. The honor of the cup was finally awarded to the underclassman.

This fall a second preliminary tournament was set in full swing under the direction of Miss Hasseltine, but unfortunately the weather-man withdrew his support. One shower following another made the courts unfit for use. Therefore the tournament was suspended until spring, when it is hoped that the weather will be more favorable.

Archery

The successful revival of archery at Middlebury has proved a source of pleasure to its many enthusiasts, and an attraction to freshman and sophomore women choosing their sport required by the physical education department. Under the able supervision of Alice Cady '32, practices have been held three times a week, and much progress has been shown. Archery is a sport requiring quite a degree of strength, and not a little persistence is necessary before skill can be acquired. One of the goals an archer may reach is a place on the team competing in an intercollegiate telegraphic tournament. The results are wired to the college sponsoring the contest, and the high scorers gain their victory "right in their own back yard."

Since archery constitutes a minor sport, another possible goal is the winning of W. A. A. points.

Hiking Club

The Hiking Club is the haven of all those who are athletic but not too athletic, and is open to all members of the women's college interested in "seeing Middlebury."

Under the leadership of Elsie Waterman '32, the club has been unusually active, and has gained many enthusiastic supporters. There is an organized hike almost every Saturday afternoon "starting from the Hillcrest parlor at one-thirty." These usually have the cider mill, Chipman Hill, or the covered bridge for a goal. Preparations were carefully made in the fall for an all-day hike to Lake Pleiad, but an early snow-storm made the outing impossible. The club, however, hopes to make the trip sometime in the spring, when conditions will be more favorable.

Regular members of the club receive the usual number of W. A. A. credits awarded for a minor sport.
Fraternities
Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council governs the making and enforcement of all rules in matters that pertain to the fraternities. Each group is represented by two of its members, one senior and one junior.

For the past two years rushing was held for one week beginning on the first Monday of the school year. This system proved to be unsatisfactory in many respects and thus by a recent ruling of the Council the rushing period will begin on the fourth Monday of the college year. As we go to press full details of the new system have not been evolved, but it is expected that regulations will be made whereby rushing will be simplified both for the fraternities and the freshmen.

The Pan-Hellenic Association

The Pan-Hellenic Association is an intersorority organization whose purpose is to promote friendly relations between chapters, and to maintain high social and scholastic standards. It consists of two representatives from each sorority, one Senior and one Junior, the latter becoming Senior representative the following year. Offices are conferred by rotation. There is also an advisory council consisting of one alumna from each chapter, chosen whenever possible from the faculty of the college.

The functions of the Pan-Hellenic Association include the formulation of rushing rules, and the regulation of all matters of Pan-Hellenic interest for the mutual benefit of all sororities.

Kappa Phi Kappa

Kappa Phi Kappa is a national educational fraternity for those who have had at least two courses in education and plan to enter some branch of educational work.

Its purpose is to enable the members to develop a professional attitude, and to stimulate intellectual and social contacts. Bi-weekly meetings are held, usually at the home of a faculty member, where formal and informal discussions are followed by a social hour.

Founded at Dartmouth in 1921, the fraternity immediately proved its popularity by establishing branches in most of the leading colleges and universities. In 1925, it was introduced to Middlebury, where it is especially favored because of the large number of graduates who choose the teaching profession.

All undergraduates who have participated in two or more intercollegiate debates or oratorical contests are eligible for membership in Tau Kappa Alpha. This national honorary forensic fraternity was founded at Annapolis in 1908, and the Middlebury chapter was established in 1921. It is co-educational, the quota of members being chosen from among the outstanding women debaters as well as from the men.

The organization arranges for the entertainment of visiting teams; the furnishing of judges for high school contests; the management of the annual debate between the men’s and women’s colleges; and exhibition contests before civic and community bodies throughout the state.

The furnishing of judges for high school debates, which was done this year for the first time, places the local chapter on a par with that of leading branches of the fraternity in other parts of the country. The plan provides that members of the fraternity shall be available for judging services in secondary school debates at the expense of the school engaging them. In this way, not only do the judges get experience in the evaluation of debating arguments, but the schools get men and women who have had training in forensic fields.

Pi Delta Epsilon

The Middlebury chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon is the honorary journalistic fraternity of the men's college and is composed of students who have proven by accomplishment that they are interested in undergraduate journalism. Since the establishment of the national fraternity in 1930 the group has done much to encourage efficiency and cooperation among the various undergraduate publications.

During the football season programs for all home games are published by the fraternity in conjunction with the Blue Key Society. Detailed tryout systems for both the Campus and Kaleidoscope have been planned and put in operation by the organization, and this spring the first annual Vermont High School journalistic contest was sponsored by Pi Delta Epsilon. The fraternity conducts the annual Literati Ball and has direct supervision over the publication of the annual Freshman Handbook.

The Kaleidoscope is the official yearbook of Middlebury College and is published annually by the Junior Class. It makes its appearance either during or shortly after Junior Week. The executive body consists of an Editor-in-Chief and a Business Manager from the men's college, an Associate Editor and Associate Manager from the women's college, and such minor executive heads as they see fit to choose.

Beginning with the class of 1933 a new system of election for the members of the Board was installed. This plan, sponsored by Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalistic fraternity, and accepted by a unanimous vote of the present sophomore class, was made for the purpose of instructing sophomores in the mechanics of yearbook production. At the beginning of the year the incumbent officers of the Kaleidoscope issue a call for tryouts from the sophomore class. These candidates signify their intention of competing for the several positions on the staff, and then aid the various department heads in much of the routine work. The candidates are expected to attend all meetings but have neither voice nor vote in the proceedings.

Before class elections of yearbook officers are held in April, Pi Delta Epsilon, in conjunction with the women officers of the present board, offer a competitive examination to all tryouts. This examination is divided into as many classifications as there are departments of the staff and they are graded by an impartial committee in Pi Delta Epsilon. The candidates who have the highest averages and show outstanding ability are recommended to the class for election to the four offices within its jurisdiction. The remainder of the staff is chosen by the nominating committee from among the other sophomores who have shown an understanding of the work.

The Kaleidoscope that was first published in 1874 was a forty-eight page review of the college year. Since that time it has continually expanded until it has reached the present size of three hundred pages. All phases of Middlebury life are covered by the pictorial and editorial matter contained in the book. Special prominence is of course given to the members of the Junior Class, the group that sponsors the publication, by including their individual photographs and writeups. But, because of its broad scope, the book has always been of vital interest to all who have affiliations with the college.

This thirty-sixth edition of the Kaleidoscope is the product of the class of 1932. It has been our aim to make the book one of the outstanding gifts which this class will ever give to Middlebury. To accomplish this we must reflect the true atmosphere of the college by means of a complete and exact account of the activities and personnel for the year 1930-31. If this book has drawn a true image, then our purpose has been satisfied.

In our attempt to present the material in the most interesting and attractive manner we have not hesitated to accept ideas in form from previous editions of the book, but it has been our plan to inaugurate as many new features as could be practically introduced. It is only through the hearty cooperation of the entire college and more especially the members of the Junior Class who have served on the Board, that any success, which this book may attain, has been reached.

The Middlebury Campus, official undergraduate newspaper of the college, was first published October 28, 1830, as the Undergraduate. This paper contained literary articles, and national and international news, entirely excluding all items pertaining directly to the college. Publication was discontinued from the spring of 1831 until March, 1876, when it was again published, with William W. Gay, '76, as editor. The paper remained much the same in content as in previous years and was issued regularly several times a year until 1899.

After a lapse of six years Prof. Charles B. Wright of the English department, David C. Cadwell, '05, and Charles Smiddy, '05, produced The Middlebury Campus, a quarterly magazine devoted to college news and containing fewer literary articles than the Undergraduate.

In 1913 a bi-weekly, four-page, four-column paper was substituted for the magazine form and content. The Campus was reorganized in 1922 by D. Hadyn, '24, who enlarged the journal, revising the page to its present five-column size. At that time the system of weekly publication was adopted. In the fall of 1927 an insert was added, making the paper a six-page issue. A slight change in the composition of the editorial staff took place in the spring of 1929. The position of Women's Athletic Editor was added, and a news staff was formed for a more complete consolidation of the reporting staff.

The Campus in its present form is published by a board consisting of students who are chosen by competition for both the editorial and business staffs after a two-year period of apprenticeship. During this time the candidates are instructed in the fundamentals of journalism by the editor-in-chief and the managing editor.

All campus events of news value are published, and a large portion of the paper is devoted to the athletic activities of both the men's and women's colleges. Space is also reserved for several feature columns which are given over to alumni notes, communications from readers, musical and dramatic reviews, and literary criticism. These reviews cover other student publications, all presentations of the drama department, and the concerts and lectures of the Entertainment Course.

The Campus, as an organization, is influential in undergraduate life because of its size and power. As a result, in the combination of the student publications which cooperate in electing a representative to the Student Council, a member to the Campus board is usually chosen for the office. Further evidence is found in the election of members of the men's college to Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalistic fraternity. Seven members of the Campus board are now included in the membership of that organization. Each year, representatives of the board assist in the management of the Literati Ball, the formal dance of the Middlebury publications given by Pi Delta Epsilon at the Middlebury Inn. This affair is open to all students who have been active in at least one publication.

The Saxonian, the literary magazine of the college, was founded by the English Club in 1921, and named after Middlebury's own poet, John Godfrey Saxe, of the class of 1839. Its columns are composed of the best literary contributions of the student body.

Appointment to the board is based on literary ability as shown by the publication of a student's contributions, or by activity in competing for a position on the business staff.

The Saxonian is active in encouraging creative ability among the students, along any literary lines, whether in poetry or prose. One means of stimulating interest is the annual short story contest open to all classes. Prizes are generous, and the magazine publishes the three best contributions. Faculty members serve as judges.

This publication is being watched with great interest as it develops, since there is opportunity for it to become of importance in carrying the thought-life of the college to the outside world, as the Campus is now the means of publishing news.

The Handbook

The Middlebury College Handbook is published jointly by Pi Delta Epsilon and the Middlebury Christian Association for the benefit of the incoming freshmen, and is referred to as the "Freshman Bible."

The Handbook contains information regarding the various phases of college life, including the history and traditions of the college with which every student should be familiar, freshman pointers, rushing rules, statistics of organizations on both sides of the hill, constitutions and by-laws of the governing bodies, and the location of offices of the administration and faculty. A large part of the book is devoted to the songs and cheers of Middlebury.

Contributions from the Men's Undergraduate Association, the Women's Student Government Association, and the Women's Athletic Association enable the Handbook to be distributed to the entire student body as well as to the incoming class. The advertising of local concerns also lessens the financial obligations incurred in the production of this publication.

The Press Club of Middlebury College was founded by Prof. Wilfred E. Davison ten years ago, but had not been active for six years before the advent of W. Storrs Lee, editor of college publications.

Under the direction of Mr. Lee the club was re-established in February, 1930, the objective of the organization being essentially the same as that of the previous venture. Its aim of service to Middlebury has been realized not only through the work of the club as publicity agency of the college but also by its other undertakings, all of which have been successful. These include a permanent record of all releases published, a collection of over five hundred cuts which are available to all students, and the production of the "Mem Book" which contains programs, pictures, and write-ups of all campus activities.

The Press Club is the official publicity bureau of the college. It was formed in answer to the demand of the alumni and students for better news representation in the daily press. The amount of space Middlebury has been accorded in a large number of newspapers, is evidence of the success of this organization.

Organizations
The Undergraduate Association

The Undergraduate Association is the student organization of the Men's College, membership being open to all undergraduates. Its purpose is to preserve and regulate the beneficial customs of Middlebury, to promote student activities, and to provide a medium through which student opinion may be intelligently formed by adequate discussions and when desirable, presented to the college authorities.

Meetings of the Association are called at the discretion of the President of the Association, the Student Council, or by a petition of two-fifths of the members-at-large of the Undergraduate Association.

The nomination of the President is in the hands of a group of seniors, composed of one representative from each of the fraternities and the neutral body. Other nominations may be made only upon the petition of twenty-five per cent of the members. The election of the President by the undergraduate body as a whole is by a majority vote. The Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the Association are elected by the Student Council from its own members.

Student Government Association

Under the Student Government Association the women of Middlebury have their own rules by which they are governed. Its aim, as stated in the Constitution, is "to control the conduct of the women in all matters of their college life which are not under the jurisdiction of the faculty; to foster the spirit of unity among them; to increase their sense of responsibility toward each other; and to maintain the social standards of the college."

While legislative power rests with the Association as a whole, including all students of the Women's college, executive power is vested in the hands of a council, composed of the officers, two representatives of the house chairmen, and one representative from each class, all of whom are elected by the student body.

Acting in a social capacity, the Association gives a tea every year for the members of each class.

The Student Life Committee

The Student Life Committee is a joint student-faculty organization. Its membership consists of the President of the Undergraduate Association, the President of the Student Government Association, the Dean of the Men’s College, the Dean of the Women’s College, and a member of the faculty appointed by the President of the College.

The regulation of college dances, entertainments, and social gatherings, is in the hands of the committee. Schedules of musical, dramatic, and similar organizations are also submitted to the committee for approval before they are definitely determined.

All problems dealing with the social life of the campus are discussed and disposed of by the Student Life Committee. Free discussion of all such matters is made possible by the character of its membership—both the student and the faculty point of view being available. During the past four years in which the committee has successfully functioned, every action taken has been unanimous.

The Student Council

The Student Council is the executive body of the Undergraduate Association. It has control and is responsible for the conduct of all organizations and individuals in the Men's College.

Under a new system, inaugurated a year ago, the membership includes the President of the Undergraduate Association, who acts as chairman, the Presidents of the four classes, the Presidents of the Blue Key and Waubanakee honorary societies, the President of the 'M' Club, and one representative chosen by Pi Delta Epsilon.

The Student Council takes upon itself the task of seeing that the freshmen are properly instructed in the traditions and customs of the college. In addition, it passes judgment upon the observance of the freshman rules. During the fall, before either the Norwich or Vermont football games, it organizes the annual frosh P-Rade. The activities of the Council are communicated through the President of the Undergraduate Association, and its power is felt through his action rather than that of the body itself.

No organization or club may exist in the Men's College unless an authoritative, written statement of its nature and purpose has been deposited with and approved by the Student Council.

Waubanakee is the self-perpetuating Senior honorary society of the Men's College. It was established at Middlebury in 1911 to mark and reward those who have given of their time and ability to the services of their college, and have been the outstanding men of their class in the various college activities.

Election to membership in the organization comes shortly before Junior Week. Pledging takes place prior to the opening event of the Week. This ceremony is known as the tapping of the Waubanakees.

The organization spreads its influence by combining the functions of the other societies of the Men's College. The insignia of the society is a gold pin in the form of a tomahawk. Members can be recognized by their black cloth hats with a red tomahawk embroidered on the front.

Blue Key, honorary society of the Men’s College, was founded in the spring of 1930, supplanting Sage and Delta Tau, former junior and sophomore societies respectively. Its purpose is primarily to entertain visiting teams, and to be of service to the college and student life. It has its counterpart in many other colleges, the Key movement being nation-wide. Members are elected following Easter vacation to serve until graduation.

The formation of Blue Key was prompted by the need of an active organization having definite functions. Various Middlebury teams had been impressed with the manner in which they were entertained by Key societies during trips to other colleges. This fact, together with information gathered at a national Key convention at Dartmouth in 1930, led to the establishment of Blue Key at Middlebury the same year.

For the purpose of raising money to carry on its work, Blue Key is empowered to sell frosh hats, rule cards, athletic programs, and to give a Key informal in the late spring. Programs were published during the past year in cooperation with Pi Delta Epsilon, journalistic fraternity. The Key feels that its position of host to visiting teams is one which can be of benefit to the college. It regards itself not merely as an organization of undergraduates elected to honorary membership, but primarily as a functional body valuable only to the extent to which it performs actual service.

The Banshee Chapter of Mortar Board, national senior women’s honorary society, was installed in Middlebury May 27, 1928. Banshee, the old local society, was founded in Middlebury in 1912. Its members were not to exceed twelve and were to be selected as those women of the junior class “most popular and most representative of Middlebury.”

The purpose of Mortar Board, as stated in the preamble of the constitution, is “to provide for the cooperation between women’s honorary societies, to promote college loyalty, and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college woman.” Service, scholarship and leadership are the objectives of the organization, and it is upon these qualifications that members of Mortar Board are chosen.

Each chapter of Mortar Board has a service program by which it endeavors to carry out its purpose. This year’s program includes work in the establishment and revival of Middlebury tradition, an effort to bring about a closer relationship with the faculty, and an endeavor to keep up a high morale among members.

Middlebury Christian Association

Reorganization of the Christian Association is under way this year. It was begun by severing connections with the national group of Y. W. C. A. and changing the name to the Middlebury Christian Association.

The new organization plans to hold discussions of campus, social, and economic problems. These meetings will be conducted by state officers of the Y. W. C. A., by foreign students, and by local authorities. The spiritual problems of the members will be discussed with the various chapel speakers.

M. C. A. is trying to meet the needs of the women of the college, and to do this, an advisory board of faculty members has been working in conjunction with the Cabinet.

A Christmas party for the town children is an outstanding feature of the social service work.

Men's Debating

Increased student activity, reorganization of the coaching system, and a schedule that included leading educational institutions in the east, were factors that combined to make the past debating season one of the most outstanding in the history of the college.

The most important forensic event of the season was the debate on December 2 in Mead Memorial Chapel with the Scottish Universities Union, a two-man team from Glasgow and St. Andrews Universities respectively. The Scottish team, upholding the affirmative side of the question, Resolved: That mechanical and scientific progress do not necessarily represent an advance in civilization, was awarded the judge’s decision. In this contest Middlebury was represented by Thomas J. Duffield, '33, and Edward Yerovitz, '33.

On the annual Boston trip which directly preceded the Christmas recess, Middlebury won two out of three debates—defeating both Keene Normal School and Tufts College, and losing to Boston University by a two-one judges' decision. Reamer Kline, '32, Thomas Duffield, '33, and Edward Yerovitz, '33, composed the Middlebury team.

Two co-ed debates were held during the season, one on February 17 in Mead Chapel and the other on April 24 in the Grange Hall. The Men's College was represented by Anthony G. L. Brackett, '33, Frederick W. Brink, '33, and William S. Weier, '33.

The regular spring trip was taken during the first week of April. Albany Law School of Union University, Lafayette College, New Jersey State Teachers' College, New York University, and College of William and Mary were met on successive nights. Other opponents of the year were St. Michael's and the University of Vermont.

Women's Debating Club

The Women's Debating society is an organization open to all interested in debating, the only requirements being interest in the work and effort in the study of the questions chosen.

At the meetings of the club, topics which are to be debated during the year are discussed. After this introduction of the subjects, a try-out is held before the debating council. This gives the coach and council an opportunity to judge the merits of each girl. From this group of try-outs the three girls who present their subjects most convincingly are chosen to represent Middlebury in the first debate. As many girls as possible are given a chance to participate in the following debates. The aim is democratic and the choice of teams is made on the basis of how thoroughly the girl has prepared previous questions and the amount of interest she shows.

Due to the efforts of the manager, Priscilla March, '30, the team has been able to arrange a program of interesting debates at home and at other colleges. Public debates have been held with Boston University, St. Lawrence University, the University of Vermont, Keene Normal School, and Bates College.

Some of the popular questions debated were: Resolved, that the large part advertising plays in modern civilization is to be deplored; Resolved, that the United States should recognize Soviet Russia; Resolved, that the chain store system is detrimental to the best interests of the American public; Resolved, that mechanical and scientific progress do not necessarily mean an advance in civilization; Resolved, that the separate states should adopt legislation for compulsory unemployment insurance.
Since the founding in 1926, the "M" Club has been one of the most active societies on the campus. Membership is open to those who have won varsity letters in one of the major sports; football, basketball, baseball, hockey or track. The alumni members are included as well.

The club sponsors a friendly feeling between the athletes, and also assumes the task of providing major letters and sweaters to the successful contestants. To this end the "M" Club minstrel is given annually in the spring of the year. This precedent was started in 1930 and proved most successful. To the "M" Club we are also indebted for those popular informals at the gym. The series this year was exceptionally well attended, adding materially to the fund.
Women's "M" Club

The Women's "M" Club was organized in 1928 as an honorary association for those women who, having earned 1000 points in various sports, have received their "M" sweaters. Membership also means that a girl has played on an All-Midd or championship team. Both sportsmanship and posture are taken into consideration. Miss Young is an honorary member.

The purpose of the organization is to stimulate interest in athletics, and to assist W. A. A. in the arrangement and management of the yearly program.

English Club

The English Club of Middlebury College, founded in 1920 under the direction of Professors Cady, Davison, and Skillings, has as its object the uniting of those interested in any of the several fields of literary endeavor. During its ten years of existence the Club has had the Saxonian under its wing.

At the monthly meetings in the Abernethy Wing of Starr library, general literary discussions, informal talks by members of the faculty, or addresses by such well-known guests as Thornton Wilder and Robert Frost are sponsored.

Le Cercle Français

Le Cercle Français est un club ouvert à toutes les jeunes filles et à tous les jeunes gens du collège. Son but principal est de donner aux étudiants l’occasion de parler et d’entendre parler la langue française. Il est affilié à "l’Alliance Française," organisation internationale.

Les réunions ont lieu une fois par mois au Château. Pendant l’année il y a d’intéressants programmes. Un pique-nique à Chipman Hill est toujours la première réunion; elle est suivie pendant l’hiver par des soirées auxquelles sont faits des conférences, soit par les professeurs soit par les diplômés; et pendant lesquelles on offre des programmes de musique et des pièces.

The A Tempo Club was organized in 1929 for the purpose of bringing together girls who are actively interested in music. The principal aim of the club is to furnish to its members equal opportunities to perform, direct, and criticize, at all times stressing a program of individual, as well as cooperative activity.

The program for each meeting is planned and superintended by individual members in turn. These programs include study and practise in musical fields in which members may find teaching opportunities, and cover intensive consideration of such topics as instrumentation; the organization of an orchestra; the problems of organizing and conducting glee clubs; assembly singing; music theory contests; radio work; problems of piano accompaniment; modern musicians, and what they are doing; and musical activities in modern high schools.

The Club hopes, by serious consideration of its field, to gain an outlook on the possibilities of furthering work in music after graduation from college, and also to foster and increase musical interests on campus. Membership is limited to the two upper classes, and election is based upon musical activity and interest.

The Middlebury College Band

The Middlebury College Band under its present management has become a significant factor in the student life of Middlebury. A large number of men turned out for the first rehearsal of the year, and soon demonstrated that this band would be as successful as those produced in former years. It is interesting to note that the membership is comprised of nearly one-eighth of the Men's College. This remarkable record has been surpassed by no other college of equal or greater size.

The band made a decided hit at its first appearance on Middlebury Night. They continued their excellent performances throughout the year, playing at all home games and rallies. In the fall the band accompanied the team to Boston and a few weeks later to Norwich where the strains of "Victory" again echoed loudly. The band brings its activities to a close in June with a concert on the lower campus, and by leading the Commencement procession.

The Qolkgc Orchestra

The college orchestra is an organization open to all students who are proficient in the use of some orchestral instrument. Under the direction of Professor Alfred Larsen of Burlington, this organization offers to its members an exceptional opportunity for increasing their musical ability, for developing an appreciation of the classics, and for obtaining valuable practical experience.

Weekly rehearsals are held, and a program of classical music is presented each year.

The Glee Club of the men’s college has become one of the most outstanding organizations that represents Middlebury. During its six year membership in the Intercollegiate Glee Club Association, Middlebury once secured third place in the national finals, and twice was given honorable mention in the New England sectional contest. The majority of the colleges of the country including such large ones as Princeton, Yale, and Dartmouth are included in this competition, but only one other eastern college has surpassed the record established by Middlebury.

Approximately forty men rehearse during the entire first semester in preparation for the engagements which follow. During the past season twelve public concerts were given in six different states, and in every case the singers were enthusiastically received by the listeners. At the New England Intercollegiate Contest which was held at Hartford, Connecticut, the Middlebury Club was ranked within a few points of the winning organization.

Three radio broadcasts were made in the course of the 1931 season, each time over one of the most powerful stations in the east. On the afternoon of February twenty-second the Glee Club was heard over WGY in Schenectady, N. Y. Three weeks later a radio concert was broadcast from WOR in Newark, and on March twenty-first the singers were heard from WEAF in New York.

The outstanding event of the 1931 season was the recording of two selections of the club by the Columbia Phonograph Company of New York. This record has been placed on general sale and has met with wide approval.

The dramatic activity of Middlebury College centers around the college playhouse. The building contains an auditorium and stage, together with all the equipment necessary for dramatic productions. It also has facilities for scenery construction, stage design, and other forms of experimental work. Here the frequent programs of one-act and long plays are presented by members of the dramatic club and play production courses, working under the direction of the college department of drama.

All undergraduates are eligible for membership in the dramatic club, which is the largest of the three organizations cooperating in Middlebury’s little theatre work. Membership carries with it the privilege of free attendance at the one-act plays given throughout the year, and reduced prices for longer presentations. It makes the student eligible for participation in acting, stage, scenery, and costume work. At the present time over one-third of the students and faculty of the college are affiliated with the club.

The courses in drama, handled by the playhouse director and his assistant, comprise the work in this field done in the college curriculum. Active interest in dramatics for at least one year preceding the date of application is prerequisite to admission to the advanced courses. Students work out the problems of staging, costume, make-up, acting, lighting, direction, and scenery, under the supervision of the instructors, the system being similar to the laboratory work of scientific courses.

Consistent interest and ability in dramatics qualify students for membership in Wig and Pen at the end of their junior year. This organization is honorary in character, and exists as a recognition for outstanding work. New members are elected each spring, a formal banquet being held to signalize their admission. The activity of Wig and Pen during the past year included an informal dance which was given at the playhouse with great success, and a three act play presented in April.

The department of drama of Middlebury College is also actively interested in forwarding the little theatre movement in near-by communities. It has presented plays in Rutland before a local civic organization, and was advisor and associate throughout the course of a state-wide dramatic tournament recently sponsored by the Vermont Grange.

During the current season, the dramatic department has presented four programs of one-act plays, and two long productions. A gradual shift of emphasis has brought the aim of the department to be the attainment of complete perfection in each presentation, with greater time devoted to the preparation of each program. This has naturally resulted in a high standard of excellence maintained throughout the season.

The organization began the year's activity October 22 and 23 with the successful presentation of "The Open Door" by Alfred Sutro, and "Wurzel-Flummery" by A. A. Milne. The former, a one-act dialogue, involves the conventional "husband—wife—other man" triangle, and was exceptionally well handled by the cast. The comedy "Wurzel-Flummery" is a strong character piece, involving considerable difficulty of presentation, but this was effectively overcome and the presentation was an outstanding one.

November 27 and 28 saw the season's second program, "A Game of Chess" by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, and "Joint Owners in Spain" by Alice Brown. The former, having but four people in the cast, only two of them major characters, is a play of tense situation written around the developments occurring when two Russians, a noble and a peasant, meet and match wits for their lives. The plot calls for cold-blooded poise on the part of the aristocrat and striking action from his opponent, and the cast was fully equal to these requirements. "Joint Owners in Spain" is of lighter vein, the scene being laid in an old ladies' home, where minor troubles and petty squabbles are magnified into matters of greatest importance. The Middlebury presentation was distinctive for its quiet humor and pathos.

This year's Christmas offering was "The Cradle Song" by Gregorio and Maria Martinez-Sierra, a two-act comedy with a poetic interlude. The scene is laid in a convent, and the play is outstanding for its depiction of the activity and feeling of the entire group of nuns, instead of those of any one or two individuals. The play had already been presented in the Middlebury College summer school at Bread Loaf, and its repetition at the playhouse resulted in even greater success, the drama being one of the most impressive ever staged here.
"A Game of Chess" was taken to Rutland January 14, where it was presented, together with James M. Barrie's "The Twelve Pound Look" before a community club of that city. "The Twelve Pound Look" was then paired with "The Marriage Proposal" of Anton Chekhov, and staged at the playhouse January 29. It is one of Barrie's best, and excels in character delineation and dramatic situation. The cast, having already given the play once before, presented a very finished performance. The Russian comedy, like most of Chekhov's work, is outstanding for the high spirited and ruthless handling of characters, who are involved in many unforeseen situations as the difficulties of making a marriage proposal unfold. The piece is an excellent depiction of the barreness of the life of the Russian aristocrats, whose wealth removed them from all vital activity. The Middlebury cast was particularly successful in handling the Russian characterizations.

Other presentations of the season were James Barrie's three-act drama "You and I," given during the month of April; another one-act program consisting of Biro's "The Grandmother," and "Crow's Nest," a Yale 47 Workshop piece. "The Grandmother" afforded ample opportunity for experimentation in the proper handling of costuming, being one of the few pieces given this year in which the time was not "the present."

During the past few weeks the dramatic organization has been working on the 1932 junior play, which was scheduled as one of the main features of junior week.

MOUNTAIN CLUB

Middlebury's most recent organization is the Mountain Club which was formed in March of this year by a group of students from both the men's and women's colleges who were interested in taking advantage of the large mountain campus. By the payment of a small annual fee members of the student body or faculty may participate in organized hikes to the various points of interest about Middlebury.

The club owns hiking equipment which may be borrowed by the members, and it is planned that at least one cabin will be constructed on the mountain campus by this group. While active throughout the whole year, the greatest enthusiasm has been aroused by the many snowshoe trips which were sponsored during the winter season.
Way back in 1808 according to the Middlebury College Souvenir, the Junior Promenade was a dance "given by the Junior Class for the purpose of making money. Sometimes the purpose is gained, often times not." In comparing notes with this old-time record we find that we have, instead of a single evening in the fall, four heavenly days in May.

First of all, there is that silent moment before the baseball game when the Wau-banaukees tap their papooses. Then there are athletic stunts galore and the traditional fraternity stunts (bigger and better than ever this year). Billy Murphy himself is coming up from New York with his Royal Arcadians, not for the purpose of making money for the class (that was in the good old days) but solely to play the best music for the best dance of the year. Saturday morning after you've eaten a deliciously late breakfast at one of the fraternity houses you'll all go down to the Riverside Golf Course and try your hand at miniature golf. There's a Junior Tea that afternoon at the Inn and A. A. Milne's delightful fantasy, "The Romantic Age," to be seen that evening at the Playhouse. Sunday is just a lazy day when you're left to your own devices until evening when the inter-sorority sing brings the whole glorious week to a harmonious close.

Senior Week

We who have always maintained that Class Day just wouldn't be Class Day unless it were held on lower campus had to conclude that Shakespeare was right, that the play was the thing after all, when due to a drizzling rain the exercises were held in the gymnasium. The daisy chain was all the fresher for the rain, and it needed no sun shining down on them to prove to us that Eddie Cottle and Joe Hardy were quite the handsomest pair of marshals any senior class could have wished for. After Al Henry had given the customary presidential welcome, he introduced Carl Howard, the class historian. How one hundred and thirty-three seniors could sit and listen to such a glowing account of their four undergraduate years and not burst their mortar-boards is still puzzling us. As for the prophecy—if the prognostications of such reputable astrologers as Betty Dyer and Frank Chromec are correct, the class of '30 will return for its tenth reunion in sixteen cylinder cars and Command-Aire racing planes especially constructed to accommodate their added avoirdupois. And so from the ridiculous to the sublime, for when Woody had concluded his oration on American culture, I think we all felt a little humble and each of us privately resolved to seek out for himself an old canoe-maker in the northern Adirondacks. The class Will, done in the inimitable fashion of those two prize comedians, Crookie and Heavy, must have proved a revelation not only to the Juniors but to some of the more musical-minded members of our faculty as well. After Wallace Green had read his "Retrospect" which was a small masterpiece in the way of class poems, Dean Hazletine topped off the program with a breathtaking list of academic honors. And just because we like to have the last word in everything—we’ve been wondering ever since when Dick got around to planting that tree.

Everybody went down to the Playhouse to see Twelfth Night on Friday or Saturday nights. It was most admirably staged and was presented with a nice restraint and a smooth delivery of lines which did credit to both Shakespeare and the director. The costumes were lovely and the stage hands deserved special commendation for the rapidity and ease with which they shifted the scenes in total darkness. The large and capable cast who had parts in this most delightful and familiar comedy was as follows:

Sunday was a day never to be forgotten with President Moody’s splendid Baccalaureate in the morning, on the conflict in life between the imaginary and the real, and with step-singing up at Pearson’s at sunset—a symphony of sound and color.

By Monday the fine weather had come to stay and promptly at ten o’clock the senior procession left Old Chapel and paraded down through Main Street, past the Grey Shoppe where so many a senior girl lost her heart to a party frock, past Farrell’s where every senior man could remember buying a frosh pea-green, a pair of orange socks, or a pale blue shirt, past the Post Office, haven for laundry cases and Thanksgiving boxes, past the Rexall store and Aine’s and Joe’s (Joe’s famous for its specials dedicated to the reigning campus queens) and on up the hill to the Congo Church. There Dr. Kenneth Ballard Murdock of Harvard delivered a commencement address which analyzed the dilemma of the college graduate and offered a way out through individual striving toward individual goals. And then it was all over; diplomas had been awarded and every senior had made that last gesture of shifting the tassel on his hat from the right to the left side.

In the evening all of the newest and most of the older alumni drove over to the gym for the ball. The band was good; the lights were low, and everyone was feeling so exhilarated that even the very perceptible roll in the floor went unnoticed. By four o'clock all roads leading to Middlebury were crowded with cars speeding back to college, and weary seniors were trudging up the hill to their chapel service. Just what goes on at that last ceremony the uninitiated never know but those of us who waited outside will remember as long as we live the moment when the sun came up from behind the green mountains and strong voices sang verse after verse of "Lest We Forget."

The Soph Hop

We wish the poet who wrote that in a little college in the Vermont hills he once attended the most stately and dignified dance he'd ever seen, could have looked in at one of the Inn windows on Thanksgiving Eve. Maybe it was the new flowing gowns and the long gloves, or maybe it was Dr. Barney's swallow-tail that gave such an air of formality to the Soph Hop. Or perhaps it was because we have always raised one eyebrow at a stag-line threatening the serenity of our formal dances and have clung tenaciously to our programs. After all, who can blame us when a long slim lady dancing in the arms of a still longer gentleman graces the parchment covers of our dance orders when inside are rows of imposing names?

And as a tribute to the Black Panthers who are as adept at impromptu entertaining as they are at sobbing out "Limehouse Blues," the only soul who would actually admit to us that he wanted to go home at two o'clock was Prexy.

COMMITTEE
Kingsley Smith, chairman; Arthur Amelung, Rollin Campbell, Chester Clemens, Seymour Hand, Ralph Huse, John Rulison, Harry Wells, Milton Wooding, George Yeomans, Miriam Barber, Doris Barnard, Alice Heald, Virginia Kent, Bertha MacKenzie, Margaret Scott, Julia Sitterly.

The Literati Ball

With the Sophs it's a Hop, with the Juniors it's a Prom, but with the Literati who have a real feeling for words it's a Ball. In fact we were feeling a bit high-hat when we first learned that we were included in that charmed circle of the intellectually elect. It was only when we discovered that one-third of the college felt the same way about it that we began to wonder. The other two-thirds took to letting their hair grow and talking Spengler and Henry James for weeks preceding the affair in a desperate effort to convince the committee of their worth. All of which goes to prove that a ball sponsored by writers and poets just can't be dull if you throw in a few press agents and advertising agents for good measure. What matter if the editor of the Campus later became the target for rolls of pink and blue serpentine? At least he can point with dignity and pride to the successful publishing of the smallest extant issue of any college paper known in the way of programs. Best of all the Black Panther—Middleburian combination produced music of such a superior brand that the old adage about too many cooks was very definitely disproved.

COMMITTEE
Richard Amerman, Chairman; Marion Simmons, Evelyn Benjamin, Kenneth Parker, and C. Perkins Bailey.

The Scullion's Ball

Once every year the Hepburn waiters doff their white coats for dress suits, hire the best orchestra on campus, transform the Commons into a banquet hall, and invite all the prettiest co-eds over to attend the most exclusive and consequently the most exciting social event on the semester calendar—the Scullion's Ball. It is one of those unusual dinner dances where the menu is delicious, the speeches witty, the gowns beautiful and one's partners delightful. You forget that the dieticians ever served you cold toast or Middlebury mud. You only know that Prexy is one of the nicest men of your acquaintance, that you'd like to hug dear little Mother Mason, that the man you're with is the best dancer in the world and that you'd rather die than hear the first strains of Home Sweet Home.

COMMITTEE
Gerald Thayer, Chairman; William Greene, Gordon Ide, George Yeoman's, Richard McDermott.

The Frosh Frolic

Ever since September we'd been harboring a secret grudge against this year's Freshmen for appropriating our class colors but after the Frosh Frolic we quite forgave them. It was one of the nicest semi-formal dances Middlebury has seen in a long time. Of course Saint Valentine who is the special patron of this particular affair may have had a hand in it. Personally we've always suspected that that contagiously sweet malady—spring fever—seizes upon its first victims at the Frosh Frolic. The wily old match-maker had us hopping around to the ever popular music of the Black Panthers or the Middleburians or both (we simply can't keep up with the chameleon-like quality of these college bands) and then just when were off our guard he signaled to the orchestra leader for something soft and dreamy. Our hearts had hitherto been behaving in a very normal fashion but by twelve o'clock they were racing wildly along quite regardless of rhythm.

A Product of Jenkins Precision

EVIDENCE of precision manufacturing is to be seen in every part of Fig. 106-A, Jenkins Standard Bronze Globe Valve. In the machining of the one-piece screw-over bonnet, the slip-on stay-on disc holder, in the threading of the spindle, and of the body, . . . everywhere, Jenkins precision is apparent.

Fig. 106-A represents the last word in bronze valve construction. The one-piece bonnet and slip-on disc holder advantages, as well as the valve's fine finish and appearance invite your examination.

Poor Lighting an Extravagance

A survey of about one million people brought out that:
In the public schools, 22 per cent had defective vision.
In colleges, 40 per cent of those under 20 had defective vision.
No less than 71 per cent of all under 50 had the same trouble.
Of persons over 60 years of age, 95 per cent suffered from defective eyesight.

Poor lighting belongs to the days of the cave man’s pine torch, the hanging fire basket, the crude oil lamp, the candle, with their smoke and flickering, wavering light.

Electricity belongs to this age. There is no excuse for poor lighting. The abundant and correct use of light pays for itself many times over.

Whether in the home, office, or factory, poor lighting is an extravagance—inhaling the eyes and increasing hazard through accident.

"You may say all the nasty things you want about Jack, but you'll have to admit he is a good loser."
"Yeah, practice makes perfect."

"Harry is a man of culture."
"Yes, but it's all physical."

"When I was young I thought nothing of walking fifteen miles in an afternoon."
"I don't think so much of it myself."

"I hear Katherine is marrying that X-ray specialist."
"Yes. What can he see in her?"

"I'll put a strop to your foolishness!" said the father as he turned Willie over his knee.

Son: "Yes, I'm a big gun at school now."
Father: "Well then, I'd like to hear some better reports from now on."

Some co-eds will do anything for a man, others will do a man for anything.

Waitress: "Don't you like your college pudding, sir?"
Diner: "No. I'm afraid that there is an egg in it that ought to have been expelled."

"Why didn't you walk back from that automobile ride?"
"I couldn't. We had burnt up the road."
